It is noted that the DOJ requested that an FBI Agent "review relevant documents firsthand, from the relevant intelligence agencies, as opposed to having to rely on the agency's summaries or review..."

During a meeting at DOJ with Section Chief Bergasser and DOJ Attorney [redacted] on 10/28/93, it was pointed out that a written request from the FBI or DOJ would be required before any records could be obtained from DOS [redacted] for review by the FBI. During that meeting, Mr. Bergasser requested that the FBI prepare a communication to [redacted] DOS and let him review it before it was sent to those agencies.

♦ On 10/28/93, an FBIHQ indices search revealed a reference to "Finders" in FBIHQ file 7-HQ-20191. On 10/29/93, a review of this file indicated that FBI, Jacksonville (Jacksonville file 7-1248) and FBI, WMFO (WMFO file 7-1685) had conducted investigation resulting from an arrest of two individuals in Tallahassee, Florida in 1987.

File review of 7-HQ-20191 indicated that a joint investigation, conducted by the MPD and WMFO, lead to the identification and interview of the mothers of the six children, two of the fathers, and several other key members of the "finders" group. On 2/18/87, WMFO presented the results of their investigation to Assistant United States Attorney [redacted] [redacted] United States Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia, Washington, D.C., who declined prosecution for violation of title 18, U.S. Code, Section 1201 (kidnaping) and 2251 (sexual exploitation of children). PRELIMINARY INQUIRY - ALLEGATIONS OF ORGANIZED CHILD ABUSE BY A GROUP KNOWN AS "FINDERS"

A joint investigation by the Washington Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) and the Federal Bureau of Investigation lead to the identification and interview of the mothers of the six children in question, two of the fathers, and several other key members of the "finders" group. All persons interviewed claimed their group consisted of an alternate communal type life style made up of intellectuals who have chosen to live the way they do. The mothers were all aware that the children had been taken to Florida on a trip, they were familiar with and thoroughly trusted the men in whose care the children had been placed, and all insisted the children were well cared for.

HELP END CHILD PORNOGRAPHY AND EXPLOITATION

COSPONSOR THE LEWIS BILL TO REESTABLISH CHILD PORNOGRAPHY UNIT

Dear Colleague:

In February, 1991, U.S. Customs "integrated" their Child Pornography and Protection Unit into the Smuggling Investigations Division, Office of Investigative Programs. At the time, Customs stated that "these changes have in no way affected the manner in which child pornography investigations are being conducted by our field offices or the support that our headquarters staff provides."

I asked Customs to provide me with arrests, convictions and employee-hours spent on child pornography and protection. Customs own numbers show a dramatic and inexcusable decline.

YEAR	ARRESTS	CONVICTIONS	EMPLOYEE-HOURS
1988	106	100	47,772
1989	54	57	54,613
1990	110	103	100,524
1991	82	116	61,173
1992	57	69	27,435

As you can see, since the Unit's heyday in 1990, arrests and conviction have been nearly halved, and employee-hours have been reduced to barely one-fourth of previous levels!!

Therefore, I am introducing a Concurrent Resolution calling on Customs to reestablish its Child Pornography and Protection Unit, and to equal or exceed its 1990 efforts.

It is clear Customs has given up most of their efforts to put an end to this reprehensible trade. It's time to make a permanent commitment to stopping those who prey on the most vulnerable members of our society. If you would like to cosponsor this Resolution, contact me, or [redacted] of my staff at [redacted]

Sincerely,

Tom Lewis

THE TUNNELS FOUND AT THE McMARTIN PRESCHOOL
A PRELIMINARY REPORT

A formal report will be released when forensic tests are concluded.

- 45 foot tunnel
 - 9 foot wide subterranean entrance found under west wall of the "Dog" room (Classroom 4 [redacted] classroom).
 - Avocado tree roots cut on both sides of the entrance.
 - Disney bag, "Copyright 1982," found 4-1/2 feet below the classroom floor and 3" to 6" in from entrance and under foundation, Classroom 4.
 - Tunnel proceeded south, then east 45 feet through Classrooms 4 and 3, and north, then east 10 feet within Classroom 4.
 - Tunnels were 30" wide, 44" to 46" deep, with top of the tunnel 30" under the classroom floor.
 - The footing between Classrooms 3 and 4 was arched where the tunnel passed underneath and 12" shorter in depth at this location than same footing 12 feet to then north.
 - Four large, upright containers were found in the tunnel under the arch, obviously hand placed.
 - A 9 foot wide chamber was found along the tunnel under Classroom 4. Top of chamber and top of sections of the tunnel had layers of plywood covered with tar paper which had apparently been supported by cinder blocks and 2" x 2" and 2" x 4" wooden posts found underneath.
 - Tunnel features made it evident that tunnel was hand dug.
- 7 foot tunnel extending into the triplex next door
 - Tunnel extended from the bathrooms off the office and Classroom 1 to the front yard of the triplex next door. Front yard concealed from street by three-car garage.
 - Children described entrance and exiting tunnel in triplex yard exactly where tunnel and exit were found.
 - 1 39" x 41" area under a hole cut in this neighbor's bathroom floor had been excavated and subsequently filled.
- Other significant facts
 - A small, white plastic plate with three pentagrams hand drawn on top of light green paint was found by the archaeologists in the stratified dirt in the play yard.
 - Per historical archaeologist, pentagrams were hand drawn by an adult and not part of the manufacturer's design.
 - Many other artifacts found, whose analyses will be released upon completion of tests.
 - No doorknobs were on Classroom 3 door, only a dead bolt lock.
 - Each classroom had on and off light switch labeled "Fire Alarm." System did not connect to fire station but was used as an alert within the school.
 - More than 2000 artifacts were found under the school floor, including over 100 animal bones.

Due to severe time constraints our archaeology team was unable to further explore the extent of the tunnel networks. Above documented through photographs, notes, graphs, diagrams and charts. For more details call (213) 854-5172.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
U.S. CUSTOMS SERVICE

ENF 1 E:INV:SM

Mr. and Mrs.

Dear Mr. and Mrs.

Thank you for your letter dated September 13, 1991, expressing your concerns regarding the U.S. Customs Service Child Pornography Program.

The Child Protection Act of 1984 clearly defined the agency jurisdiction in this typically multidisciplined area of enforcement. The U.S. Postal Inspection Service has jurisdiction pertaining to the use of the U.S. mail to transport child pornography, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) has jurisdiction over the interstate transportation of child pornography, and the U.S. Customs Service has jurisdiction over the interdiction and the international distribution of child pornography. The statute has created a close working relationship between the agencies at the field office and Headquarters level. The point of this is that the statute has permitted a clear definition of responsibility for the respective agencies.

Recently, the U.S. Customs Service Headquarters Office of Enforcement experienced a massive reorganization. This reorganization caused the Child Pornography and Protection Unit to be integrated into the Smuggling Investigations Division. The Child Pornography and Protection Unit was a part of the General Smuggling Branch which was a part of the Smuggling Investigations Division. All Units, Branches, and Sections were eliminated during the recent reorganization. The child pornography program is now headed by the National Child Pornography Program Manager, a Senior Special Agent assigned to the Smuggling Investigations Division, Office of Investigative Programs, at Headquarters. These changes have in no way affected the manner in which child pornography investigations are being conducted by its field offices or the support that the Headquarters staff provides to these field offices. The primary functions of the Unit remain the same, that is to coordinate investigations within the U.S. Customs Service and between the U.S. Customs Service and other agencies, as well as collect, analyze, and disseminate child pornography data. INST

Headquarters has established and still maintains working relationships with the Department of Justice through the Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section, the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, the FBI, the U.S. Postal Service, and various Military Investigation Commands. The Office of Enforcement also continues to work in conjunction with the Customs Office of Inspection and Control in seeking out and discovering new and unique methods of smuggling child pornography into the United States from other countries.

The aggressive approach that the U.S. Customs Service has demonstrated in conducting child pornography investigations within its jurisdictional area, has had an impact on both the violators and the distributors, and the methods of smuggling used by these individuals. The U.S. Customs Service will continue to target and investigate the importation of child pornography as aggressively as we have in the past. The ultimate effect is the enhancement on our part to prevent the sexual exploitation and abuse of children.

Should you have any further questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Finders/Chronology

REPORT RE:
Overview Report

SYNOPSIS:

This report deals with the entire investigation concerning a group of subjects who call themselves The Finders. This document will explain the involvement of the Metropolitan Police Department and various agencies involved and the action taken during the course of this instant investigation. All the following information is still of a sensitive nature and should not be disseminated outside this unit.

Source Information:

In December of 1986, [redacted] called the intelligence division and reported that she had information concerning a cult operating in the District of Columbia. [redacted] was advised that Detective [redacted] of this office handled cult investigations and was currently out of town but would contact her after his return. [redacted] was contacted in late December by Detective [redacted] by telephone and [redacted] advised she wished to be interviewed concerning this cult. Detective [redacted] and Detective [redacted] of the Maryland Park Police (Because [redacted] stated a section of this cult was operating in Maryland) interviewed [redacted] at her residence in [redacted]. [redacted] stated that a group of individuals were trying to introduce her into a cult and explained the nature and circumstances of this cult. (SEE R.O.I. dated 12/18/86) [redacted] was advised that although this group was unusual, they were committing no criminal offenses and the police department would only be interested if this group was involved in criminal activities.

In January 1987 [redacted] again contacted Detective [redacted] and stated that some of the members were interested in exploring satanism. Detective [redacted] again advised [redacted] that although satanist are not criminals, Detective [redacted] was interested in ascertaining what activity this group was involved in and asked [redacted] to call Detective [redacted] if additional information became available.

The Customs representative stated that (6) children had been located in Florida along with two men and that the children were dirty, unkept, insect bitten, underfed and possibly sexually abused. U.S. Customs stated that they had tried to contact representatives of the Finders at [redacted] without success and they feared that other children were being abused at that address and were unsure if the children had been kidnapped from their parents. Detective [redacted] was put in contact with Investigator [redacted] and [redacted] of the Tallahassee Police who were the lead investigators in the case. [redacted] told [redacted] that the children were recovered in Tallahassee Florida after a call to police stating that six children were being kept in the back of a van near a Florida park. The police responded to that location and determined that the children were in fact in poor condition and tried to question the two men, identified as [redacted]. [redacted] refused to answer questions by the police and were arrested for child neglect. The children when interviewed by the Tallahassee Police stated that they were enroute to a "smart school" in Mexico and could not give any positive information concerning their parents. [redacted] stated that the children were all extremely hungry and urinated and defecated on the floor during the interviews. [redacted] stated that the children also talked about other children in Washington D.C. and stated that they were under the control of the "game caller", [redacted].

Search Warrants:

Based on the information received from the source and from the authorities in the State of Florida, AUSA [redacted] authorized a search warrant for the premises of [redacted] Washington D.C. Search Warrants were executed for the premises of [redacted] by members of the M.P.D Intelligence Division on February 5-6, 1987. Although no children were found large amounts of documents dealing with child rearing and shaping were recovered along with manuals for master plans and "dirty tricks" for enemies of the Finders group. All this information was turned over to the Florida authorities for evaluation.

the week of February 11, 1987. Detective [redacted] report is attached and made part of this summary.

Interviews:

Twenty one former Finders have been interviewed concerning thier involvement in the organization. They stated that the organization began as an alternative life style in the 1960's and many of them became disenchanted with the quasi-military order under the direct supervision of [redacted]. Many of the former members stated that they feared retribution from the Finders organization. In the case of [redacted] she needed police intervention to stop the harrassment of the Finders, In the [redacted] case, [redacted] was burned down and remains a open arson. In the [redacted] case, members of the Finders attempted to infiltrate [redacted] in the United States. In general all members of the Finders who had left the group felt that harm would come to them if they spoke out against [redacted] or his organization.

b6
b7C

Family Members:

Detective [redacted] interviewed all the family members who were willing to talk. Specifically, they all stated that [redacted] had brainwashed thier children and prevented any contact with either thier children or grandchildren. Members of the Finders, according to family members would stop any contact by sending letters describing explicit sexual acts involving current members, including photographs and drawings. In the [redacted] case members of the Finders attempted to take over the [redacted] family residence and force [redacted] out of her home.

b6
b7C

Virginia State Investigation:

Special Agent [redacted] of the Virginia State Police stated that his organization executed search warrants at the Finders Farm in Madison County Virginia. [redacted] stated that this group appeared to be a survivalist organization with attempts to take over the city government in Culpepper Virginia. During Virginia States investigation information was revealed that bodies were buried on the farm at the Nethers, but excavation revealed nothing. However, cages were discovered on the premises that witnesses revealed were used to keep children during thier visits to the farm.

b6

F.B.I. Investigation:

The F.B.I. had contact with the Finders since 1971 including a recent report dealing with C.I.A. involvement with at least one of the members of the Finders passing information overseas concerning activities of the Central Intelligence Agency. When it became apparent that no Federal Laws were violated the F.B.I. vacated the investigation.

Central Intelligence Agency Investigation:

Although the C.I.A. claims thier only involvement was that [redacted] was a former employee of the agency, They stated that they were monitoring this investigation from the beginning. [redacted]

REPORT OF INVESTIGATION (Continuation)	DATE April 13, 1987	BRANCH Domestic Security
FILE TITLE The Finders Investigation	I. D. NUMBER

Summary:

It is the writers belief that the Finders organization is and has been utilized by the Central Intelligence Agency as a disinformation service spreading non essential, non-critical information to various organizations throughout the United States and overseas. This group to the most part is made up of over-educated non-achievers who lacked the inborn intitative to succeed on thier own. Therefore they fell in with a charismatic leader who gave them direction and self importance. To the most part this organization individually is harmless, However when directed and monitored by a controlling factor they are capable of destructive and illegal activities. As in any cult structure the main drive is for the group and individual values and ideaology is lost, Therefore when a member is asked to perform a task that hereto fore may have been objectionable, He or She performs this mission for the good of the group.

As to the abuse of the children; I do not think that child abuse was a planned tactic of this group, but as in any cross section of society, sick and demented subjects belong to a cult as well. I do believe that the shaping of the children is a planned experiment of this group as in the case of the Nazi's they strove for a perfect society, thereby in thier own way tried to form a group of children and ultimately adults that did not suffer from the ill's of normal society, but took only the benefits that afforded them perfection.

Lastly I do not feel that the Finders have disbanded as reported by thier leaders be instead, as reported in thier master plan, have appeared to disband to prevent further detection by law enforcement or social service officials. I firmly believe that this group should be monitored in a general sense and if further developments occur they should be noted.

REPORT RE: Finders involvement with the Central Intelligence Agency

At Approximately 1530 hrs, 2/18/87, Det [redacted] spoke with S/A [redacted] reference any contact the members of the Finders may have had with the Agency. S/A [redacted] was guarded but frank in his responses. He confirmed that [redacted] Isabelle, now deceased, was an employee of the agency from 1950 until 1971. When asked if our investigation was "treading on anyone's toes out there", [redacted] replied "Sort of".. He acknowledged that they have had someone working on the case since it first broke on the news media. He also stated that ~~the~~ the agency is aware that during the period 1969 - 1971 [redacted] traveled to Moscow, North Korea, and North Vietnam. [redacted] (C)

[redacted] S/A [redacted] stated that he would contact Det [redacted] on 2/19/87 to arrange to come to this office for further discussion. As of 1430 hrs, 2/19/87, he has not contacted this office.

As a practical matter, what is not being said is as important as what S/A [redacted] has said. [redacted] acknowledged that we are treading on their toes and that they have had someone working on the case since Feb 5 when it broke. They apparently have a vested interest in [redacted] and/or the group. They have not contacted any of the investigating agencies while they have been working on ~~the~~ the case. They are also aware that [redacted] traveled to prohibited countries during a period of hostilities that could only have been arranged by them. Finally, he stated that [redacted]

In Search of the

FINDERS

Until February 1987, the Finders were invisible to all but a few friends, relatives, neighbors, police, and intelligence buffs.

The Finders liked it like that.

Even those familiar with the group of 20 adults and six children had different notions of what the members were up to. The Finders liked that, too. The more disparate the images, the more invisible the group became.

Its camouflage theory: If your foe can't discern your edges, you make a poor target.

Friends of the Finders described them as '60s throwbacks who lived communally, ascribed to Eastern philosophies, played elaborate games using the globe as their board, and raised their children creatively. Relatives branded them a cult and charged that they were pawns of their leader, Marion Pettie Jr., a.k.a. the Game Caller, the Student, the Stroller. Police followed leads alleging that the group was satanic and used the children in rituals. Intelligence buffs believed the technology-savvy bunch was made up of spooks. Neighbors of Finders' homes in D.C. and rural Virginia tagged them as plain weird: How else to explain perpetually shuttered windows, a stovetop hot tub, and adults captured in dress clothes ambuling outdoors with bug-bitten kids who don't go to school?

These images spun in concentric circles, like planets around the sun. Then on Wednesday, February 4, 1987, the planets began to collide.

Shortly before 5 o'clock that afternoon a woman who lived next to Myers Park in Tallahassee, Florida, called police to report an odd sight: a man dressed in a coat and tie playing in the park with six unkempt children. When two patrol cars arrived at Myers Park the officers found two well-dressed men and six kids: alongside a foul-smelling, blue Dodge van with Virginia plates. The kids, between the ages of 2 and 7, were bug-bitten, had scratches on their legs, and were wearing dirty clothes.

One officer interviewed the men, Michael Holwell, 23, and Douglas Ammerman, 27. The other questioned the children.

Had Holwell and Ammerman told the police they were from a D.C.-based communal group, had they explained they were on a camping trip, had they reached in the glove compartment and forked over the letters-of-consent from the children's mothers, had they not acted so evasive and weird, they well might have been thanked for their time and left alone. But there are too many what-ifs in the Finders saga, too many chapters that could have been the last one.

Instead, what happened is this: Holwell and Ammerman were arrested on misdemeanor child-abuse charges. Within a day the national news rocket took off, fueled with the worst kind of off-the-record innuendo, misleading court documents, and wide-eyed pronouncements from officials working the case. If you believed the reports, Holwell and Ammerman were satanic D.C. cultists that swiped children from their parents, sexually abused them, and peddled kiddy porn across the globe.

The Washington Post ran Page One stories three days in a row. Washington TV stations dispatched reporters to Tallahassee to broadcast live remotes. The Miami Herald quoted parents of Finders wondering if the group was going to pull a mass suicide, a la Jonestown. The staid New York Times reported that "some have described [the Finders] as a bizarre cult of devil worshippers." Everyone got in on the act. There were stories broadcast by Rita Braver, Connie Chung, Larry King, CNN, even the BBC.

The Law pulled out all the stops, too. The Tallahassee and D.C. Police hooked up with the FBI, the U.S. Customs Service, Interpol, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (an FBI-like unit), and police in Virginia, San Francisco, and New York.

Holwell and Ammerman sat in stir at Tallahassee's Leon County Jail and the state of Florida held the children in protective custody. Meanwhile, police raided Finders' homes in D.C. and Virginia, investigating everything from the men's sexual habits to their finances.

The only trouble was, they hadn't broken any laws. After six weeks in jail, the charges against the men were dropped. And though the state kept some of the chilren from their mothers for months, eventually all of them were returned.

A year-and-a-half later, the Finders have quietly gone back to their own business. But some questions have yet to fade. How did the case get so whacked out of proportion? Why did it continue, week after week?

And who are the Finders, anyway?

The Tallahassee Police Department responded to my Freedom of Information Act request by turning over most of their Finders files. Their cooperation was remarkable. The Washington Metropolitan Police Department, on the other hand, which searched two D.C. Finders' dwellings, refused to answer any questions for this article. "We were not the lead agency," explained spokesman Sergeant Joe Gentile. D.C. Police also denied my Freedom of Information Act request and appeals, claiming that this case was a juvenile matter and therefore off limits.

Officer Judy Suchocki, one of the arresting officers, guides her patrol car between stands of oaks to a patch of dirt at Tallahassee's Myers Park. As her headlights illuminate webs of Spanish moss hanging from the trees, she tells the story of the arrest.

Suchocki had responded to a Code 13P, suspicious persons, and arrived as the back-up to the first officer on the scene, Tony Mashburn. Mashburn questioned Holwell and Ammerman; Suchocki interviewed the four boys and two girls in the Dodge van.

"They were scared of us, which is not unusual for kids," says Suchocki.

"My first impression was that they were dirty, but I would not say that they were unusually dirty for kids," she says. "The van smelled like urine and there were blankets all over the back. They definitely were sleeping in the van. I asked the kids where they were from, why they were here, where they were going. Mary was the one who was talking. She was real talkative."

Mary, 7, said they were from Washington and she recited their Glover Park address and phone number. She gave all the kids' names and their ages: Max Livingston, 6; Benjamin Franklin, 4; Honey Bee, 3; John Paul Pope, her brother, 2; and B.B., 2. They didn't go to school, though they had been taught how to read and how to play games. One of the two men was her daddy, Mary said, but they hadn't seen their mommies since before Christmas—which the Finders don't celebrate. She explained that they have lots of mommies and daddies and that the adults do what the Game Caller says. Right now, they were being "weaned" from their mommies and just "going different places," sleeping in campgrounds.

"I was worried about the kids being kidnapped," says Suchocki. "For her to tell me they were being weaned was odd."

After questioning the kids for 20 minutes, Suchocki compared notes with Mashburn. Ammerman and Holwell had told Mashburn they were D.C. teachers en route to Mexico where they were going to start a school for brilliant children. The kids' parents, they said, were back in Washington. Then Ammerman became evasive, refusing to claim any of the kids as his own, and Holwell clammed up entirely.

"I'm not sure what's going on," Mashburn told Suchocki. They radioed their higher-ups.

For one week in 1987, the D.C.-based Finders were the talk of the country when Tallahassee Police arrested two well-dressed members traveling with six dirty kids. The secretive group has faded away again, but a few questions haven't. How did they become Page One news? Why did the state of Florida drag the case out for week after week? And who are the Finders, anyway?

Waiting for their supervisor to arrive, Suchocki continued her interview with the kids. The Game Caller was a big fat man who sat on a pedestal and threw pennies at them, Mary said. Suchocki began to think the kids had been brainwashed.

Mary recounted a recent trip to a coin-op laundry: They hadn't put enough soap in the machine and some of the clothes didn't come clean. They said they received food in reward for work. Lived on a diet of raw vegetables and fruit, and hadn't eaten since morning. As they talked, Mary took oranges and bananas from a box in the van and peed them for the other kids.

"Stuff like that made me wonder if the men were taking care of the kids properly—even if they weren't being kidnapped," says Suchocki.

Florida child-abuse laws make it a misdemeanor to deprive children of food, clothing, shelter, or medical care or to cause them mental injury. On arrival, Suchocki and Mastburn's supervisor decided, if nothing else, the laws had been broken and he told the officers to arrest the men.

"The children were extremely hungry when officers didn't put up any argument. Suchocki didn't put up any argument. "There was no way I was going to let these men continue with the kids if I could help it," she says. "Can you imagine how I would have felt if we let them go and I learned later that these six kids were kidnapped? Think about it. If it was your child who was kidnapped... When informed that they were under arrest, Holwell fell to the ground.

"The guy just did a fake faint," says Suchocki. "I've seen it several times. Women are really good at doing it. Usually when a person really faints you don't bend the knees. This guy did a Scarlet O'Hara thing."

"I checked him. I looked at his eyes to make sure he wasn't diabetic or something. I said, 'Get up. I know you're faking this mess.' And he wouldn't get up... It was like a child playing; like when you go in to check if they're asleep at night."

A few teenagers hanging out in the park noticed the commotion and fetched their home video camera to tape the arrest. Holwell was hoisted by his limbs, put in a patrol car with Ammerman, and driven to the station. Suchocki drove the kids over in the van.

Ammerman, who had a valid driver's license, was booked under his name and also under an alias, Kenny Rogers. Holwell had no ID and was booked as John Doe, with the a.k.a.'s Michael James Houlihan and James Michael Holwell.

"The children were extremely hungry when they got to the police department," officer Mastburn wrote in his three-page report. "The children appeared as if they hadn't bathed in several days and most of them didn't have on any underwear... The children's clothing were extremely filthy and they had on mismatched socks."

Investigator Cheryl Weigand of the Sex Crimes and Juvenile Unit "Miranda-ed" Holwell and Ammerman in a holding cell and attempted to interview them. Instead of answering the charges while Holwell laid on the cell's floor with his eyes shut tight, jerking his body, "Holwell was doing the frog," says Weigand, who was appointed the case's lead investigator.

"If they had said who they were, given us a number where we could have contacted the mothers, I'm not saying the situation wouldn't have concerned us—it might still have been a little hard for us to understand—but it would have lifted a large cloud," Weigand says. "We had six children, and we didn't know who their mothers were."

Weigand ushered the kids through the second of the many interviews they would endure.

Mary said the Game Caller's name was Marion Pettie. She said he forbade the children from entering the Glover Park house and that he lived on the roof. While on the road, she explained, they wrote to Pettie on a modern-equipped computer—a TRS-80 laptop—and then he would tell them what to do.

I don't understand, Investigator Weigand said.

Mary told her they were "different." Different indeed. One of the boys peed on the rug in Weigand's office. Other kids soiled their pants. Six-year-old Max Livingston, the noted, had a poor understanding of time. He didn't seem to recognize a stapler, a typewriter, and other common office objects. Weigand led the kids back to the van to get some food and one of the 2-year-olds ate eight bananas and a carrot.

"These children were not properly taken care of," says Weigand, who bails from New York. "Being a police officer is very much a learned behavior. You see one incident and say 'what if?' We see hundreds and hundreds and we learn what is reasonable for a parent to do and what is not reasonable."

Weigand spoke with one of the girls about sexual abuse. "[S]he became very evasive," Weigand wrote in her report. "She denied any 'bad touches' or any inappropriate behavior by the adults. [She] became very fidgety, and wanted to end the interview."

Later, two of the kids described a game in which they ripped off an adult's clothes. Apparently, the kids only tore off a man's jacket and then rummaged through his pockets for change. They told Weigand about another game where women walked around naked.

"Both children felt that this was very funny," wrote Weigand, "and went along with the concept of it being a game."

The police fingerprinted the children and took their mug shots after agents from Florida's Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) arrived to place the kids in protective custody.

Investigator Weigand phoned the D.C. Metropolitan Police Department and explained the situation, giving them the Glover Park phone number and address Mary had memorized. D.C. Police reported back to Weigand, saying they had reached an answering machine with a "weird" message on it, some kind of biblical passage. D.C. said it was going to send a cruiser by the house. Tallahassee didn't hear from D.C. until the next day.

As Finders travel the country and the world, they communicate with fellow members via electronic mailboxes, such as MCI Mail. No matter where they are they can receive or transmit a message with a Touch Tone phone, a computer, a modem, and the mailbox password.

The day after Tallahassee Police arrested Ammerman and Holwell, a Finder named SS (Stuart Silverstone—they typically use their initials when corresponding) sent a "priority" report to BM (Bob Meyer).

"The sequence of events started here when I returned to W St [the Glover Park home] last night around 10pm to a waiting Metropolitan Police Officer Smith of the 2nd District HQ," SS's report reads. Officer Smith told SS that three kids were found in Tallahassee living in a van and that police thought one of the mothers lived at this address.

"The offer asked my name, which I gave, + whether this was a school, No, and that was about it," wrote SS. "I offered to make some calls to try + locate the mother."

SS checked the answering machine and listened to a message left by the D.C. Police. A few minutes later the phone rang. It was an officer from Florida's HRS explaining that they had the kids and that the juvenile court would be holding a custody hearing, the next morning. "He asked me if I knew where the mothers were, + I said I would try to find out. He asked if this was a school, + I said No, it was a private residence. He would not tell me more, such as the names of the men being held + charges."

On Thursday, the day after the arrest, the juvenile court granted HRS temporary custody of the children. The criminal court set bond of $100,000 each for the misdemeanor child-abuse charges leveled against Ammerman and Holwell. SS called Investigator Weigand, using the name Steve Learner, and told her he was trying to help put the mothers in touch with her. Weigand explained the particulars of the case. Would the mothers get their kids if they showed up? he asked. Not necessarily, Weigand said.

"It was a very routine sort of investigation," says Officer Scott Hunt, who was the Tallahassee Police Department spokesman at the time.

Hunt phoned the press Wednesday night and briefed them, but on Thursday the only mention of the arrest was in a small story in the local paper, the Tallahassee Democrat. "Child abuse cases were not that unusual," says Hunt.

That changed before the close of Thursday when D.C. Police realized Ammerman and Holwell were members of the Finders:

"Their [D.C. Police] response was 'Holy shit! We've been looking at these freaks,'" says Hunt.

Tallahassee Investigator Cheryl Weigand spoke to Detective Jim Bradley of the Washington Metropolitan Police Intelligence Unit that day. In her report she wrote, "He asked this investigator if I thought there was a possibility there may be more children at either of the locations [the Glover Park home the women and children resided in or a Northeast warehouse that the men called home]. This investigator stated that may be true, but I did not have any specific child that I knew of there. He stated that he was going to get search warrants on both locations, and try to serve them later this date."

Det. Bradley filed an affidavit for the search warrants at the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia on Thursday afternoon, explaining that he was looking for evidence of kidnapping, a federal crime, or any related offenses described in the affidavit.

"Prior to February 5th, 1987 your affiant, Detective James E. Bradley, Jr. received information from a confidential source of information," wrote Bradley. "This source stated that a group of subjects calling themselves the Finders, A [sic] cult, were conducting 'brainwashing' techniques at the above described two locations in Dist of Columbia. The source stated that members of the 'cult' attempted on numerous occasions [sic] to introduce it into the 'cult' by promising financial rewards and sexual gratification. The source stated that 'children are used in 'rituals' by the members of the 'cult'. The source stated that it never personally observed the children being abused but that it had had conversations with grandparents of the children who feared for the safety of the children."

"The source further stated that during the latter part of December 1986 it personally had conversations with one of the 'cult' members, identified as Allen Schoen, wanted it to 'explore' Satanism with members of the 'cult.'"

Judge Jean Dwyer approved the warrants shortly after 4 p.m.

Bradley's affidavit became the fount of much of the sensational reporting that followed. Ex-Finder Paula Arico, mother of Mary and John Paul Pope and formerly Holwell's wife, says Bradley's "confidential source" is a woman who had a brief affair with a group member. Two independent sources confirmed this.

In the affidavit, Bradley summarized what he had learned from Tallahassee Police and wrote, "Lastly, the source in this investigation told your affiant that the information concerning this 'cult' is kept in computers stored at the addresses listed in this affidavit."

In what appears to be an addendum, Bradley added this zinger in slightly larger type:

"On December 15, 1986 Detective Bradley responded to the area of Glover Park in the rear of the 3900 Block of W Street, N.W. Det. Bradley observed a clearing approximately seventy yards behind the house and several stumps surrounding the open area. Several round stones had been gathered near the circle, this practice is sometimes used in Satanic rituals, and evidence that several persons had gathered in the clearing recently. The rear of the residence is covered from the alley by heavy bamboo growth, save a small entrance to the rear yard. In the rear yard [sic] was a small very ornate gravestone propped up against the support pillar for the porch."

Like other members of the Metropolitan Police, Det. Bradley did not return phone calls and did not reply to a written request for an interview.

To a school of journalists circling a story, an affidavit like this one—packed with sex, child abuse, the occult, and cultism—is fresh blood. Affidavits are court documents, and journalists can quote from them without fearing a libel suit. Whether the police have their facts straight doesn't matter—an affidavit tells a journalist what the police think they know.

If that wasn't enough to chum the waters, sexual abuse got tossed in. An HRS caseworker told Investigator Weigand and at least one other Tallahassee officer that two of the children were "confirmed cases of sexual abuse," even though the physician who conducted sexual exams on the children for HRS had not confirmed sexual abuse.

The doctor's dictation, transcribed the day after the exam, cautiously describes possible sexual abuse of one boy and one girl.

"This is a distinctly abnormal hymenal pattern compatible with either digital or attempted penile penetration," he said of the girl. "The absence of superficial [sic] abrasions revealed by toluidine [sic] blue would argue against any recent trauma (in the last 3-5 days)." Of the boy, he stated, "The degree of anal sphincter laxity should prompt questioning in the area of anal digital penetration or sodomy, although it is not diagnostic of either."

Thursday evening, D.C. news stations broadcast their first Finders stories and Friday's Washington Post ran a small story in Metro.

On Friday, Weigand, another Tallahassee investigator, and an FBI agent tried to interview the men at Leon County Jail, where they were kept in isolation. To the investigators' surprise, when they arrived at the jail they bumped into Doug Ammerman's brother, David.

David told the officers Doug had visited their parents in Gainesville a few weeks before the arrest with a boy he claimed was his. Doug Ammerman had told his parents he was heading for Miami.

Though David said he hadn't seen his brother in three or four years, the year before he had written Doug a letter. David showed the investigators the reply. It wasn't from Doug. It was from Stuart Silverstone—SS—and printed on the letterhead of Gung-Ho Traders, 1307 Fourth Street NE, the address of the Finders' warehouse. Silverstone's letter said Doug had left for China with a Dr. Gung-Ho just before the postman delivered David's letter. David Ammerman also showed investigators a letter addressed to their mother signed by "The Three Wives of Gung Ho."

The letter reads, "This is to testify that your son Douglas, aka Earnest Angel, I Betterson, Danny Proper, Kenny Rogers is a true master of the art of fucking. The shape of his cock is unique and he is truly an artist at using it to give us the most pleasure. The depth! The width! The heights! No other man touches us in this way."

"His hands have magic as they stroke our slender limbs and moist pussies. Words cannot describe the tender passion that Douglas brings to our orgasmic pleasures...."

"Oh Mrs. Ammerman, we cannot thank you enough for having raised such a great stud. Just think, if he had never left home, we'd never have known the ecstasy of his throbbing penis!"

Doug Ammerman refused to speak with the investigators or his visiting brother. Holwell, however, offered some "basic information" and asked about the children. Had they been seen by a doctor? Was anything found? Where were they? The investigators told him the kids were in protective custody and not in need of immediate medical attention.

Friday was also the day that reporters from the Post and local TV stations got their hands on the affidavit, just in time to photograph and videotape the raid of the Finders' warehouse.

At a press conference in Tallahassee, Scott Hunt revealed that "physical examinations showed sexual abuse to one of the children."

The Washington TV stations went wild. Take WUSA-TV, for example, D.C.'s CBS affiliate. They broadcast the arrest footage shot by the teens. Bob Strickland appeared live from Tallahassee. Me-lo-dra-ma-tic Mike Buchanan, citing police sources, reported that the Finders had "worldwide connections," used "sex and children to obtain power and money," and had two bank accounts with over $100,000 in each one. The Glover Park residence was "a breeding house where women exercise great control." The children in custody were "like shells, zombie-like."

In the searches of the Finders' two D.C. addresses, police recovered computers, data disks, software, diaries, and other personal papers. Police also seized photos they said showed children taking part in animal blood-letting ceremonies. One photo supposedly showed a child in chains.

If you missed it on TV, there it was on Page One of the Saturday Post in two stories above the fold, complete with police mug shots of the kids in Tallahassee.

"Officials Describe 'Cult Rituals' in Child Abuse Case," one Post story was headlined. "Customs officials said they were looking into whether a child pornography operation was being conducted," the article said. Adding to the intrigue, Post reporters noted that photos of naked children were "visible through a bag carried from the warehouse" during the raid. (In TV footage of the raid, one of the article's authors can be seen scribbling madly as she peers through a jam-packed plastic bag a cop hauls away.)

The Miami Herald's Page One story quoted Officer Scott Hunt, "It is our belief these kids were not kidnapped but that their parents gave them away, because one of the rites of passage into this satanic organization is that you have to give up your rights to your children, and that the leaders of this organization can do what they want to with your children."

In the Tallahassee Democrat's Page One story, Hunt was quoted, "As far as we're concerned, this goes from coast to coast and from Canada to Mexico.... There is no doubt in our mind that this will have at least national, if not international, repercussions."

The FBI had joined the case to look into the "transportation of children across state lines for immoral purposes or kidnapping." U.S. Customs was contributing its satanism and pornography expertise. Interpol was investigating a tip about Holwell.

The Tallahassee Police Department was swash in the media flood. "I had 75 reporters waiting for me in the lobby," says Hunt. "We logged 450 telephone calls to me in two days. They were bringing in overtime people, to help take messages." Hundreds of calls were from parents claiming the children. Canvassing the nation for the kids' parents were the National Center for Exploited Children, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, Child Find, Children's Clearing House, the National Child Safety Council, and the National Association of Missing Children. Aside from a bomb threat phoned to the house holding the kids, they were physically safe as could be.

Sunday night, three days after the arrest of the Finders went public, with their story in the Washington Post, a CPA formerly with the Internal Revenue Service, sent a memo to D.C. and Tallahassee Police, the FBI, HRS, the juvenile court judge, the FBI, Dan Rather, and the Washington Post. With a stab at wit and humor, the Finders' trademark, Terrell headed the memo "SUBJECT: Investigative Leads."

"This memo is respectfully offered in the hope that it will clear up some misunderstanding concerning the current 'missing children' case receiving so much media coverage," he wrote. Terrell explained that in early January, Ammerman, a landscape gardener, and Stanley Berns, an architect, had taken the seven children to Berea, Kentucky, to help the Rev. Jim Wyker build a retirement community called New Hope. Terrell gave the name and phone number of a Berea couple who helped care for the kids during their visit, and said the plan had been to enroll them in the couple's Montessori school while the community was being built.

Because the Rev. Wyker was not ready to break ground for New Hope, wrote Terrell, "the men took the children on a vacation/camping trip to the warmer climate of Florida with the full applause and approval of the children's mothers." Terrell wrote that he drove to Florida with Holwell, computer programmers Christian Herbst and Thomas R. Van Deusen, and Robert M. Meyer. Herbst, noted Terrell, has a Harvard M.A., while Meyer "is a Princeton and Oxford M.A."

"When we were satisfied that the six children [were] safely in the hands of five capable adults, Mr. Meyer and I left Florida." On the day of the arrest, Holwell and Ammerman took the kids to the park while the three other men looked for "accommodations."

"The mothers had fully authorized these men, in writing, to care for their children and expressed full confidence in them," wrote Terrell, referring to the authorization letters in the van's glove compartment. "All of the mothers are now in San Francisco working in business offices, earning money to help pay for 'New Hope.'"

Terrell, who claimed he owned the raided Glover Park home and the Northeast warehouse, closed by saying he considered the arrests and raids "mistakes." Not violations of civil liberties. Not a humiliating pain in the ass. Not a wholly unnecessary bureaucratic fuck-up. Mistakes, that's all. His memo included his phone number and an offer to help in any way he could.

Reporters and police never poked a hole in Terrell's even-toned and cordial letter. From Berea, Kentucky, the Rev. Jim Wyker confirmed that the men and children had stayed with him for a week in January. The 86-year-old retired non-denominational minister was a rock-solid source. He told the Louisville Courier-Journal he met the Finders at a "meeting of commune proponents" a few years before. That past November, he told them about his New Hope plans, and January 9 they popped in to help. "The only thing we discussed was the land and the building and children's center," he said. "I'm not trying to uphold the Kids."

The Sunday Washington Post ran two Page One stories on the Finders, one headlined "Cult Member Defends 2 Men in Child Abuse Case."

"We are all in a state right now where we are afraid. We've been made almost dysfunctional by the reports," Terrell told the Post in what the paper called a lengthy telephone interview. Terrell described the "bloodletting ritual" as the slaughter of two goats kept on a farm in Virginia. The goats had been killed for food, he said, and the kids had watched the slaughter as an educational experience.

The Post's conversation with Terrell came shortly after police raided five Finders' properties in two small Virginia towns near Old Rag Mountain, Etlan and Nethers. Again, the Post satisfied the readers' longing to peer behind the curtain—no matter what might be there. "The door of one cabin was open yesterday, revealing large amounts of food, clothing, sleeping bags, books and pamphlets from

"By Monday, Washington's out of this, they're shutting down," recalls Lt. Van Meter. "We're getting calls from the chief in D.C. telling our chief, 'We don't have anything. Bye.'"

Monday was also the day Tallahassee got first wind of Marion Pettie's whereabouts.

Lt. Lee Hart of the Culpeper (Virginia) Police Department informed Tallahassee that he had contact with the Finders. Hart said this contact told him Pettie put out the word for members to flee and hide, and Pettie would probably go to Andrews Air Force Base and catch a military plane flight to China. This was plausible: Pettie, a retired Air Force master sergeant, had the right to free, stand-by military transport.

Monday also saw a visit to the Washington, D.C., Field Office of the FBI by one of the Finders mothers and the three men from the white van.

An FBI report of the interviews gives the impression that Herbst, Van Deusen, and Meyer had remained calm until they read the newspaper accounts on Friday morning, February 6th. "[T]hey realized they were being portrayed as child abusers and satanists. Frightened, the three decided to return to WDC and figure out what to do."

In Monday's Washington Post, Terrell explained the men's silence and passivity ("Finders' Member Labels Arrests 'All a Big Mistake.'"). Shortly before the Tallahassee arrests they had been stopped by police in Marion County, Florida, and that incident combined with 10 years of being hassled by D.C. cops convinced the men that it would be better to deal with a judge than unreasonable police.

"Another Finders mother called the Tallahassee Police Monday and asked whether the mothers would be arrested if they came to claim their kids. 'We couldn't give the mothers the guarantee that they wouldn't be arrested,' says Lt. Van Meter. The mother agreed to call back the next day."

Two more mothers visited the FBI in D.C. on Tuesday. "Everyone interviewed stated child abuse and child sexual exploitation is not a part of their beliefs and sex with children is morally reprehensible," the FBI report states. "All have complete confidence in the ability of any of their group to care for the children.... They do not in any way, shape or form practice 'satanism,' and all are eager for the return of their children. Everyone interviewed agreed to be polygraphed by the FBI should the need arise." Two more mothers were to be interviewed the next day, the report explains, and after that the mothers were planning to head to Tallahassee.

"[We] have not uncovered any indication of violation of a federal statute," the report concludes.

"We had pretty much tied up the case," Investigator Weigand says.

By Tuesday, the Post had consigned the Finders story to the Metro section—"D.C. Police: Finders Odd, Not Criminal."

That night, Terrell invited reporters into the Finders' warehouse for an interview. Sitting with his back to the cameras, a Ronald Reagan mask covering the hind part of his head, he explained that the mothers hadn't come forward because they were waiting out the storm.

Terrell also told reporters that he was "playing the role of Gheingiz K. Plato."

Tallahassee Police spokesman Hunt was flabbergasted. "Why are we doing this jousting in the media? I believe Mr. Terrell could go a long way in clearing this case if he produces the mothers of these children as he says he can," he told the Tallahassee Democrat on Tuesday.

"Up till that point, people said the of police department did some pretty dumb things," recalls Investigator Rick Huffman, who inherited the case from Weigand when she left for vacation. "Then there's this clown on TV saying all these stupid things. People started saying that's too stupid to be any kind of a cult. In Tallahassee, it turned out that this whole thing was being perceived as a joke."

Though Weigand believed the case was wrapped up Tuesday, she still wondered why the mothers had not high-tailed it down to Tal-folks from Washington. I don't know them. All I know is what I saw."

The report of three other men filed with tips police had gotten about a white van traveling with the blue van. Several state police had even been put on the lookout for the white van.

On Sunday, a college student and part-time Tallahassee Police Department employee brought to police a TRS-80 computer he found. (One police source told me the student brought the computer in on Thursday, but that the police wanted to explore its files for a few days.) Files on the computer included a report from the three men Terrell mentioned in his memo, Herbst, Van Deusen, and Meyer.

This trio had left Holwell and Ammerman at 10 a.m. Wednesday morning. "They were dressed in suits and ties, the van had been cleaned up, and the kids had been dressed in clean clothes, they had a large amount of produce with them, and the kids had a breakfast buffet before they left," the confiscated report reads. Holwell and Ammerman were supposed to link up with the men via their electronic mailbox. Until they read SS's report the next morning, the three men had no idea where Holwell and Ammerman had gone. SS's report didn't send them into a panic though: One spent the day earning a few dollars helping "a cripple," while the other two researched an article about desktop publishing at Tallahassee's Florida State University library.

Other files in the TRS-80 included a report from a member working in Hong Kong and a short note from MDP, Marion D. Pettie, to the "Kids Game." Dated 5 a.m. Tuesday morning, it reads, "If authoritarians approach again, say that you are on the way to Mexico to start a school and that you are authorized by the mothers to do this."

"It feels like a hostile act when kids are found not to be in school. If they ask tell about their degrees, plus a few that they don't have. Announce that you are going to call the school: 'Harvard University for Bright groups such as the World Future Society," the article revealed. "A plastic bag containing hundreds of packages and several pairs of panty hose were on the floor, along with boxes of diapers."

The Post coverage included juicy tidbits in paragraph 16 of one of the stories. According to a U.S. Customs spokesman, agents who saw photos seized in the D.C. raids said some of them appeared to involve sex between adults and kids. This appeared balanced with a D.C. Police source calling the pictures "no more pornography than what you find in your average home." Later in the story, a D.C. Police source confirmed that the D.C. raids didn't turn up "anything anywhere."

"We had two separate investigations going on. Ours and the media's," says Tallahassee Police's Lt. Jo Ann Van Meter, who supervised the beginning of the investigation.

"I never expected the media attention I got," says Tallahassee Police spokesman Hunt. "Never. That's the problem you have with multiple jurisdictions: The media was playing off all of us and making it a bigger story."

On Monday, Day 6 of the Finders Crisis, Washington Metropolitan Police began to slink away from the case.

The day before, D.C. Detectives Jim Bradley and Eric Witzig had interrogated the kids in Tallahassee. Bradley, who had requested the D.C. search warrants, said his visit to Tallahassee was prompted by three separate accounts of the Glover Park house's basement. Exactly what he was looking for in Tallahassee escaped Investigator Weigand, who wrote in her report for that day, "He indicated that there may have been a hole dug in the walls or the floor of the basement, for unknown reasons." Judging from the Tallahassee reports, the D.C. detectives trip to Florida was a waste. They didn't learn much more than Mary could count to 10 in Chinese.

The chief in D.C. sent up a hue and a cry in the beginning," says Tallahassee's Lt. Van Meter, "and then when his guys didn't come up with anything, he backed away."

In Search of the FINDERS

lahassee the day they learned of the arrest. "Seems to me that people who have never done anything wrong have nothing to fear," says Weigand. "What were they hiding? If it were me, I'd blindly go get my child."

Sex, confusion, small-mindedness, fear, the press, and the enigmatic Finders kept jolting the Finders case back to life. HRS recruited Chicago psychologist Dr. Nahman Greenberg to tackle the question of sexual abuse. Known for his sex-abuse work in the Manhattan Beach, California, preschool case, Greenberg held a series of interviews with the kids. His conclusion: the evidence was inconclusive.

The tangle of law-enforcement outfits working the case continued to confuse everyone.

"A couple of officers in D.C. used our arrest as an excuse to go into the warehouse," says a Tallahassee officer who asked for anonymity. "They were obsessed with this group and wanted access."

Larry Kahaner, a D.C. journalist and author of the current book, Cults That Kill, spoke with police about the Finders while researching his book. (The Finders are not mentioned in his book, nor does he classify them as a cult that kills.)

"Finders were operating here for 25 years," says Kahaner, "and as far as I know, law enforcement had nothing on them. I think that was a very embarrassing thing. Not that they got caught with their pants down—but they were at least half-way down."

Investigator Huffman is the only Tallahassee officer who squarely discussed problems in his own department with me. He says the arresting officers did right. "You really have to comment them. It's easier to cut someone loose than to get involved." But, he says, "If you get down to the bottom line, people have the right to remain silent."

A sociology major in college, Huffman says he compared the Finders to the Amish—different, not bad. Yet he cautions, "They do have their immaturities."

"Our chief of police wasn't here," says Huffman. "He's very progressive and has the ability to think in new ways. But I had to deal with the deputy chief. He had already written the group off."

"There was a meeting with the FBI, HRS, state's attorney, guardian ad litem [a legal advocate for the kids]—everybody. I had only said one thing: Let's be objective."

"He let out a sigh I can still remember. He said, directed at me, something to the effect of 'if it swims like a duck, quacks like a duck and looks like a duck, what the hell more do you need?' Obviously, these men should be sent down the river."

Huffman says the deputy chief meant well, "But he had a very narrow view."

Separate Florida agencies were battling over what to do with the case, too. "It became a political ball that bounced from one agency to the next," says Lt. Van Meter. "HRS and the state's attorney didn't want to let go of it. They kept insisting there was more to it. We got really embarrassed. It got to be a real circus."

Willie Meggs, the state's attorney, handled both the adult and juvenile cases.

"Willie gets up every morning and takes his righteous indignation pill," says Van Meter. "He's very religious, very conservative. To him, these people were heinous. He's the kind of guy who has more tattoos on one arm and apple pie on the other. To him, they were living wrong and living bad. The HRS case-worker came off like that, too."

Sherry Walker, the assistant state's attorney first assigned to the juvenile case, stepped down because she believed her office was "projecting our own morals on this group." Walker, who is running for state senate, doesn't bad mouth Willie Meggs. She thinks he was doing his job as an elected official.

"Tallahassee is very conservative. Anything not Southern Baptist is fearful to people. In this conservative environment, it looked like the mothers were unfit. We believe that kids should get three meals, clean clothes, and be put to bed at a decent hour. In this area, women are the primary caretakers. Mr. Meggs was elected by this same conservative group," Walker says.

Meggs did have "very deep feelings" about this case, Walker allows. "When you have such deep feelings about what you think is right and wrong, it does slow things up. A legal decision is not the same as a moral decision."

Willie Meggs, who displays a Holy Bible in his office, says he thinks the case went on so long because Holwell and Ammerman refused to cooperate. "The defendants acted like horse's tails," he says. "They were all secretive. If blame has to be placed anywhere it ought to be placed on these people."

Meggs says his office wanted to be "absolutely sure" of the kids' safety. "We weren't just willing to let them go to these women who claimed to be their mothers."

Meggs' office repeatedly offered plea bargains in the Holwell and Ammerman cases. "We didn't have anything," Meggs says, point blank. "When it all boiled down, when you get down to the final analysis, I just wanted them to get out of Dodge."

Meggs stands by his office's actions. "We all have a soft spot for kids," he says. "I certainly hope that the citizenry would want us to get to the bottom of a case like this. The only thing I wish is that we could have done our investigation without the press."

Nearly everyone who tangoed with the Finders affair slagged the media—including the media—and blamed them for protracting the cases. Some attacks were, of course, "kill the messenger." Others whipped reporters for all the right reasons. Some were more introspective complaints. Others lamented the constraints of late-20th century journalism, where it's the McMedium, not the message.

"This became a big story because the press made it a big deal," Scott Hunt says. Hunt, who took flak for announcing sexual abuse and satanism in the case, is red in the face now. "How do you think I got this information? By osmosis? Somebody told me."

One report that especially irks Hunt was originated by WUSA and rebroadcast by the Tallahassee CBS affiliate. "They prefaced the story, 'Fact: Tallahassee Police Department has botched this investigation,'" says Hunt. The local station invited Hunt to the studio to rebut.

"I went live on the air and called the D.C. affiliate a bunch of liars," he says with satisfaction. "I didn't bare any horses. I let the CBS affiliate have it right between the eyes."

Rick Huffman doesn't let Hunt or others in his department off so easily. Part of the problem, he says, is that the Tallahassee Police Department wasn't used to national attention. "We had Connie Chung call us up," he remembers. "Our old PIO [public information officer—Hunt] is flapping his gills all over the department."

According to Huffman, Hunt said, "This is it folks! This is my day! Connie Chung is going to interview me."

Huffman, who didn't give any interviews once took over the case, says publicity meant power-money-promotion to some on the staff. Others, he says, like Hunt, had purer motives. "They were like, wow, we may be the impetus to bring down pedophilia all over the world. We're the snowball at the top of the mountain. Maybe we can do some good." But Huffman didn't believe this was a credible case.

"They had no experience dealing with a case of this sensitivity," Huffman says. "They were passing along circumstantial evidence to the media."

Huffman was particularly rankled by the allegations of sexual abuse.

"I told them, You people are dealing with fire. For you to mention possible sexual battery to the media, they don't hear 'possible.' You are proposing the idea. This is where the inexperience hurt them. They should have personally gone to the doctor and had a good tete-a-tete to find out how far we were going to go with this. If the doctor said we had semen stains on the girl, they should have asked, Well, did you find a little? A lot? Where did you find it? If it was inside the vagina it would be different than on the foot."

"I just think we jumped to conclusions." The ordinarily toothless Post ombudsman, Joseph Lacin, was critical of his paper's Finders coverage. He chomped into his colleagues. "The news stories were laced with unnamed sources; innuendo abounded," he wrote. "Facts were in short supply, but space in The Post wasn't."

In the Washington Journalism Review's Finders critique, the news director of WRCTV was asked if his reporters were too quick to trust the authorities. "Well, they're initially your source," he said, "and as long as you report it as such you're reporting a news story...I mean, we're not an investigative agency...We're journalists...Maybe police did jump the gun, I don't know. These things tend to look very different in hindsight."

Getting facts straight is tough, as I showed in a piece of Finders press criticism I wrote for City Paper. I incorrectly reported that the men faced sexual abuse charges, I incorrectly stated their bond, and I incorrectly said they were arrested February 5. And I only faced a weekly deadline.

Tallahassee Democrat reporter Jan Pudlow, who did some of the best reporting on the group and stuck with it long after the pack had gone home, says the Finders have to shoulder some of the blame for the media's goofs.

"If you're looking at the media's responsibility to capture the truth about these people, I've got to admit I've got a little bit of bitterness lingering because these people did not make it easy for reporters to tell the truth about them," says Pudlow. "You know what they call wit and humor? I was part of their wit and humor. The wit is being deceitful and downright lying and what they call humor isn't real funny."

"I've been in the business about 10 years and I realize that when you interview somebody, everybody uses a little manipulation. We all know that. But I have never been so blatantly manipulated as by this group."

Pudlow, the first reporter to interview the mothers when they came to Tallahassee, says, "If the Finders told me today that they were coordinating the second coming of Christ and there was Jesus at their right hand I still wouldn't want to get a quote from them."

I first called the Glover Park home in late June, dialing one of the many Finders' phone numbers listed in the Tallahassee Police documents. "Gooten tag," said the answering machine. "Ni Hau. Kooichi wah." I didn't leave a message.

I then called the Northeast warehouse and group member Bob Meyer answered. I requested a group interview and told Meyer I had the police records. I dropped a detail to Meyer that not many people know. When they arrived in Tallahassee to claim their kids, the Finders mothers told police the group did not call itself the Finders. Finders, they said, was the name of a business the group no longer ran. That's right, Meyer said, laughing. As we spoke, I could hear the punctuated chatter of a computer keyboard: Was Meyer keyboarding our conversation?

(Because the Finders refer to themselves as both the "Finders" and the "so-called Finders," I call them the Finders throughout this article for consistency's sake.)

I offered to send the group clips, including my press critique. A few days later, July 2, they left a message on my home answering machine. I had not given Meyer my home number, though it is listed.

"Hello," the message began. "This is the so-called Finders calling for Jon Cohen on Saturday at 8:30 in the evening. Sorry we didn't get through to you. Maybe we'll get together later."

I called them back at the warehouse to see about an interview. I got a rhyming message that went something like this:

Could we buy another's year
Our windy salutations here
'Twould make us meet
Be quick then
As our Lord requests
A truthful foal of wit and zest
We bid thee speak

I left a message.

The next day, City Paper's receptionist buzzed me and said Steve Usdin was here to see me. Since I didn't recognize the name, I asked her to put him on the phone. "This is Steve Usdin from the so-called Finders," he said. I ran downstairs.

Usdin, clean-shaven and dressed in a conservative coat and tie, was maybe in his mid-20s. I told him I was swamped and asked if we could meet the next day.

"I don't know," he said.

"I'll set tomorrow aside and wait in the office all day," I said eagerly.

"Don't do that for me," he said. "I don't make appointments."

In Search of the FINDERS

"Well, I'll be here," I said.
 "Not on my account I hope," Usdin said.
 There was more sincerity than sternness in his voice.

He took out a reporter's notebook and asked me for my phone numbers.

"You already have them," I said.
 "Oh yes," he answered. "Well, I look forward to making this work." That was the last I saw of Usdin for a month.

Over the weekend of July 16, the Finders hand-delivered an envelope to City Paper's office. Inside was a photocopied note that reads:

 RE: FINDERS
 DT: 17 JULY 1988

If you want to do an in-depth study of the Finders, it would be best to do an in-depth study of the Troubadours, trouveres, and similar movements, or you won't understand what we're talking about.

The Finders often use the Encyclopedia Britannica as a source book. The 1987 edition of the Britannica describes troubadours and trouveres as closely related lyric poet-musicians who traipsed through France, Spain, and Italy in the 12th and 13th centuries. Adored by the courts, their verse typically explored love. Their poetry also set up lyrical conversations about "matters of a religious, metaphysical, or satirical character."

The word troubadour, notes Britannica, "is a French form derived from the Occitanian trobar, 'to find,' 'to invent.'"

The Finders Keepers: The media flood swept away Tallahassee officers Jo Ann Van Meter and Scott Host.

On July 19, I left another message on the warehouse answering machine. Later that day, Kristin Knauth, whose son Ben Franklin was held in Tallahassee, called me back.

"Two people are in Atlanta covering the convention, two are in Japan, and one had to go to San Francisco on an emergency," Knauth said. "Can we meet later?"

On July 26, I called the warehouse yet again and asked for Steve Usdin.

Bob Meyer answered and said Usdin wasn't there. Since Meyer was the first person I spoke with a month before, I asked him what it was going to take to arrange an interview.

"Is there a time that's best for you?" he asked.

I told him my schedule and he assured me he'd do what he could.

Two days later, Kristin Knauth called me. "We have an information gift for you."

Knauth said. She invited me to pick it up at the Glover Park house.

"Can we meet for an interview?" I asked.

"After you read this, you'll probably have more questions," she said.

When I arrived at the Glover Park house, Knauth led me to a lounge that has a world map covering one wall and made me a cup of tea. She was kind enough, striking me as more nervous than zombie-like. She reminded me of an actress doing an improvisation who was trying a little too hard to maintain a character.

I was nervous, too. In all fairness, I was also in character and trying hard to maintain it. From my readings and dealings with group members, I knew that she intended to interview me as I intended to interview her. My goal was to regulate what I said, not to blather on to ease the tension.

I took out a stack of papers from a package she handed me, my information gift. The first page cracked me up:

 Re: Mutual Benefit

Enclosed are some information gifts. I am planning to do an in-depth study of Jon Cohen, his associates and his relatives. How do you suggest I go about it?

I told Knauth I didn't think they needed my help to do an in-depth study of me, in-depth studies being their speciality. I quickly flipped through the other papers as we chatted. Along with what are essentially book reports, there was a smattering of electronic mail dispatches from members working in Japan, at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta, and San Francisco. A blurb in one of the group memos caught my eye:

"On participatory journalism: I have heard it mentioned in conjunction with 'New Journalism' of the Tom Wolfe/Hunter Thompson variety [sic] where the journalist becomes an actor in the drama he or she is reporting on. But what the student means by it is hard to say—maybe one tenet is Mao's 'No investigation, no right to speak' so I'll quit guessing."

Knauth proceeded to win the upper hand in the interview game, offering no information yet still getting me to talk.

Before I left, I told her I was running out of time and if they wanted to speak with me it would have to be sooner rather than later. She said Usdin would be the best one to speak with me and that he'd be back from San Francisco in a few days.

"He's welcome to call me at home," I said at the door.

"You already gave him the number?" she asked coyly.

"No," I said. "But he has it."

In-Search of the FINDERS

On August 2, Steve Usdin came by my office for the second time.

"I'm here because our elected leader for the day asked me to come down here," Usdin said.

I asked him if I could tape record the conversation and he said I was welcome to, but he hadn't come here to give an interview.

"Then why are you here?" I asked.

"Two reasons. One, to tell you that we'll answer all your questions. Two, we like you. We think you're a kindred soul. We thought there might be something bigger we could do together."

"Like what?" I asked.

"I don't know," said Usdin. "Maybe start a paper together."

Usdin told me that he was a reporter, too, and that he covered the Democratic Convention for a Japanese TV station. (I later checked this out and it was true.) We joked about the Tallahassee case a little.

"You know that Post story 'Police Say Finders Odd, Not Criminal?'" he asked. "I, say, Police Criminal, Not Odd."

Then Usdin said that he never understood why police were going after them for satanism, saying he thought laws against devil worshipping were abolished after the Salem witch hunt.

"Not that I'm into satanism," he said. "I'm no more interested in satanism than the Democratic Convention. Actually, I'm more interested in the Democratic Convention because I get paid for going there."

Usdin said he was in Moscow when the story broke and first heard about it on a shortwave radio. "We got our 15 minutes of fame multiplied by five," he laughed.

At the end of our talk, I asked if I could speak with Marion Pettie at the meeting where they'd answer my questions.

"I don't see why not," said Usdin. "He speaks to me and I'm a reporter."

"I'd also like to hear what you dig up in your investigation of me," I said.

Usdin smiled widely. "Maybe we'll write a story about you," he said.

What were their names and what were their games?

Who are these funny persons who play the game of games?

Sometimes they act like nice guys or dragons raising hell.

But before it flips they change the game; that's why it works so well.

—Opening and closing stanzas from the Finders' song, "The Ballad of Ballads," sung to the tune of "Oh, Susanna."

RTGIAD. Ready to go in any direction. It's a salutation or a closing found on most every Finders' report, and it's the essence of the group.

If you aren't RTGIAD, you can't play the game calls. And with the Finders, everything is a game call. Dress, diet, work, play, travel, marriage, divorce, pregnancy, child-rearing, pranks, investigations—even calling games can be a game call. Many people have suggested that the whole arrest was a game call. The point of all this fun and games: Every game call yields knowledge, which members bring to the Student, Marion Pettie, so he can call better and better games.

It's hard to lead a game-playing life—in this society, at least—without raising eyebrows.

While the Florida fracas exposed the Finders to the highest degree of scrutiny, it was not the first time outsiders had tried to understand the group and its motives.

After Marion Pettie retired from the Air Force as a master sergeant in 1956, he returned to the Culpeper area, his home town. One of Pettie's sons told the Washington Post that during the '60s his father spent his days at the library near Pettie Farm, the family's 90-acre property by Old Rag Mountain, and "became 'a student of the world.'" In the late '60s-early '70s, Pettie Farm was known for its free organic meals and philosophical pow-wows on the front porch. Pettie's son told the Post that his father began a new life around 1971 when he started a commune with his followers in the Glover Park house.

Today, members look much more yuppie than hippie, a turnaround that started in the early '80s. Though they have changed with the times, they still don't blend in.

They've turned heads in rural Culpeper, where they often show up at town meetings in business suits. John Davies, a Culpeper attorney who represented a former group member in a divorce proceeding five years ago, says they never say anything but always take notes.

"From my perspective, they can have a significant impact on a community like Culpeper," says Davies. "I think part of their goal is taking control of the local government." As evidence, Davies says he knows of a stockbroker running for local office with whom they tried to invest $25,000. And they're always researching townspeople.

The Finders have combed local real estate titles to see who owns what, and how much they owe, says Davies. He's also noticed Finders men walking down the street in coats and ties and making notes on every house they pass.

Davies says he thinks there's an old-fashioned motivation behind their game playing: Dollars. "Basically, they're doing collectively what an individual investor would do," he says.

In Washington, several people have posited that the Finders gather information because they are spies.

Daniel Brandt, who has put together a database of intelligence citations he sells as spy-BASE, says he first met Steve Usdin and Jeff Ubois, another group member, in the summer of '84. "They approached me 'cause they saw I was doing this database," says Brandt. "I had posted a note about it in an extremely obscure journal called Reset."

Usdin and Ubois claimed they represented an outfit called Information Bank and they gave Brandt software in exchange for information. "They were very well-informed about counterspying," says Brandt. He met with them several times over the next year, visiting the warehouse twice.

"They kept pumping me for information and I got suspicious," says Brandt.

Brandt grew more suspicious when his friends told him odd tales about their dealings with the Information Bank. Realizing the depth of the Information Bank's knowledge of the left, he sent out a three-page memo to progressive groups around D.C.

Dated November 10, 1986, the memo is headed "A Summary of What is Known About Some Very Strange People Who use Computers and Seek Out Progressives so That They can ask a lot of Suspicious Questions." In addition to Information Bank, Brandt wrote, members said they were from Global Press Review, Hong Kong Business Today, and The Seekers. Members also approached Lou Wolf, a co-editor of Covert Action Information Bulletin, and he helped Brandt check them out.

"There are several characteristics that lend themselves to the interpretation that this is an information-gathering front for a cult of some sort," Brandt wrote in his summary, noting that members may not be told the purpose behind their missions. "The guise of computer consulting is an ideal method of spying on the Left," he concluded. "It would take about twenty seconds to copy an entire mailing list from a hard disk onto a floppy."

"If it's a game, it's pretty bizarre," says Brandt, who hasn't heard from the group in a few years. "It seems like there must be some sort of impetus behind it."

More than a year before the Tallahassee case, Rep. Robert Kastenmeier (D-Wis.) looked into the group at the behest of a constituent whose son had joined. Kastenmeier says he had a hunch that they were intelligence linked, but when he took it to the House Intelligence Committee he couldn't get verification. Kastenmeier's office did learn

The Florida Finder binder forced Paula Arico to choose between the group and John Paul and Mary.

In Search of the FINDERS

that Pettie had a background in military intelligence.

According to FBI documents, Pettie worked in Air Force intelligence and sometimes bragged about his intelligence connections in later years. When the Finders story broke, WUSA reported that a police source claimed Pettie's deceased wife worked for the CIA. CNN author Larry Kahaner, who has many sources in the FBI and Washington Metropolitan Police, says he was told the Finders once did database training for the CIA.

"I don't think you have to read anything deep and dark into this," says Kahaner. "The interesting part about the Finders is that they like to play games with law enforcement agencies. That's their shtik. As you'll notice in Tallahassee, they did indeed embarrass them. It may have been one of their games."

None of the Tallahassee Police I spoke with knew anything about the Finders working for an intelligence operation. But they all had a similar response to Investigator Cheryl Weigand's: "Nothing they are involved with would surprise me."

Paula Arico nearly spits up her food laughing when I tell her people suggest the Finders may be spooks.

Arico and I are eating at a restaurant in Tallahassee. She resettled here after the juvenile court finally deemed her fit to raise Mary and John Paul. "That's their model, so pretend they're CIA," says Arico, who was in the group for 8 years and now works as a bookkeeper for a progressive construction company. "Wouldn't it be an exciting life?"

This is one of the few times in our many talks that Paula calls the group "they." Though she left the Finders more than a year ago, it's still "we this" and "we that." She also still speaks lovingly—no, adoringly—of Pettie.

"The rest of us are just dead between the cars compared to him," says Arico.

Arico has a theory for why the Finders gather megabytes of information. "We want to be the best at everything, and you can't be the best in anything if you don't have information about what the best is," she says. "So getting your information-gathering skills together is the first thing you have to do."

"But why compile a giant Who's Who?" I ask.

"It's a mystery why things are of interest to Pettie, but he's not able to call complete games if he doesn't have complete information."

"You don't know what game Pettie is in mind to call tomorrow. He already has it in mind. He's got next year's game in mind based on the information you're bringing him right now."

"Talk like this sounds like slavish devotion, brainwashing, cult. But ultimately the labels are stupid. If any group defies a label it's the Finders. They're constantly changing, reinventing themselves, drafting new 'Constitutions,' setting new rules—RTGIAD."

A taste of Finders cosmology can be found in John Fowles' novel The Magus, in which Maurice Conchis (conscious—get it?) bedazzles the protagonist with a troupe of actors/consciousness-seekers playing the "godgame." As one of The Magus' characters says, "[I]n the godgame we start from the premise that in reality all is fiction; yet no single fiction is necessary."

Paula Arico has lived the godgame. "The best thing about it for me is that I lived and worked with my best friends for eight years," Arico says. "It's hard to have that. And in a situation where everyone was committed to working it out. If you've ever had that one-on-one relationship with another person where there's that long-term level of commitment, I had that with 20 people."

"You really trusted 20 people?" I ask. "For the time that I did," she replies. "I got my eyes opened pretty quickly in about three weeks of February in 1987. But up until then, yeah, I had implicit trust, because we were all committed to Pettie's dream. His dream was our dream."

On the day of the arrest, Paula Arico was working temp jobs in San Francisco, sharing an apartment with a single mother not in the group. It was part of a "women's game" that had been underway since December 1986, and Arico was having a blast. For a long time, the women had wanted the men to do more child-rearing and it was finally happening. She was sure Mary and John Paul were in good hands. "I can't describe the feeling for those kids," says Arico. "They were the future of the tribe. We are all fucked up. No amount of game playing has managed to straighten us out. Some people have been in the group for 20 years and are still fucked up. It's the new generation that's going to bring the new age in." She notes that she doesn't think people in the group are any more fucked up than non-Finders.

Arico didn't get wind something was wrong until Friday morning. "I was getting ready to go to work, and I got a phone call from somebody who was telling me that if Stuart [SS] had already called me and told me to go to Tallahassee that those orders were reversed." The person didn't have any other information.

Courting Disaster: At the juvenile hearing, the Finders "gamed" their attorney, Paula Walborsky.

In Search of the FINDERS

Carolyn Said, mother of B.B., was the only women's game player who had a computer, and she kept Paula and the others plugged into the group. Paula called her and learned zilch.

Then the mothers—Said, Arico, Knauth, Judy Evans, and Pat Livingston—began hearing news reports. "By Friday afternoon we were all in a tizzy," says Arico. They finally contacted Pettie in Southern California and planned a group meeting in San Francisco for Saturday night.

I ask why they didn't call the Tallahassee Police in the interim. "We had to make a group decision," she says.

Pettie arrived at dusk and, as is their custom, the women massaged him to help him think. They carried out a traditional Finders meeting, each person speaking their mind, going round and round in a circle. Since the police had seized the computers from their D.C. homes; one of the group's concerns was how to stay in touch. But the kids were Topic A.

"This wasn't the first time that things had not gone right with the kids' game and we were all just really upset about that, that nobody had learned their lessons any other times," she says.

Pettie's advice: Your home is in D.C., not Tallahassee. Go back to D.C. and let your presence be known.

They took his advice.

Back in D.C. Sunday night, the women—the alleged satan-worshipping-kidnapping-brainwashed pornographers—were greeted by reporters camped on their porches.

Pettie's game call was to let the FBI call the game. The possibility of kidnapping, the bureau said, took precedence over the misdemeanor child abuse charges. One agent advised they immediately head to Florida and hire a good attorney.

When the mothers called Scott Hunt at the Tallahassee Police Department on Monday evening they couldn't get through.

"Carolyn's on the phone saying she's B.B.'s mother and she's met by snorts and giggles," recalls Arico. "She's the 200th caller claiming these beautiful children." They finally spoke to Tallahassee Police, but Hunt still told the media they had yet to hear from the mothers. "I'll never forgive him for that," says Arico.

After finishing their last FBI interview on Wednesday, the women hit the road for Tallahassee. By Friday, they were sitting in their lawyer's office.

"You haven't lived until you've been employed by the Finders," says the attorney hired to represent them, Paula Walborsky. "They elect a new leader each day. I could be hired or fired two or three times in 24 hours. But I really got sucked in. I loved it. There were great, sexy Constitutional issues."

Constitutional issues didn't come into play for weeks, though. It took until the next Thursday, in fact, for Walborsky to set up a court-sanctioned, one-hour meeting between the mother and kids.

The mother-and-child reunion took place at a park where a dozen HRS officials showed up to watch. "We would not leave," says Arico. "We told them that they would have to physically take the children away from us. We were not going to get up and walk away from our children."

"John Paul is in my arms and he's saying, 'But I want to go home with you.' And I'm saying, 'Well, I want you to go home with me, too.' I just sat there with him crying my eyeballs out, and he's crying his eyeballs out, and they came and took him away from me."

During the next few weeks, the Finders settled into the media saddle and displayed what may be their finest wit and humor of the affair. But it ultimately drove Arico and two other mothers from the group.

A memo attributed to "M.D. Pettie" delivered to the Tallahassee Democrat said he was resigning as leader of the Finders—a position he said he didn't know he held. "I thought I was just a consultant on Wit and Humor," the memo said. "If I ever was the leader, I hereby resign to devote myself full-time to Zen Walking."

The Finders also started publishing a newsletter, The Daily Finder, in which they announced that they were all moving to Tallahassee. "The Finders are always looking for signs and symbols," they wrote. "Since February 4, Florida has been sending signals that they want to keep some Finders members, so now the rest are coming."

Another issue of The Daily Finder, "Come to Tallahassee," invited friends to come join the drama and featured the song, "Old Tallahassee":

Well I came to Tallahassee
In a van so full of glee
They put me in the jailhouse
With a chain upon my knee

You get the idea.

Before the trial, Ammerman and Holwell spoke freely with Walborsky, who was assisted by several Finders men. "They all had handlebar mustaches and dressed alike," Walborsky says.

"I sent them to FSU library to get me books for the case to explain their philosophy. They came back with books on psychology, India, American Indians; Samoan tribes, Chinese philosophy."

Juvenile court was packed with on-lookers and media on the first day of the custody battle. Witnesses Holwell and Ammerman showed up in prison garb and shackles. "Talk about a circus," says Walborsky. "We could have sold tickets."

Right before the hearing, Walborsky learned that the Finders men she had been working with had left town and were replaced by Steve Usdin. She also got the news that Pettie had put a gag order on Ammerman and Holwell and that she was going to be fired.

"I said ooooh-kay. The First Amendment issues haven't even been argued and they stand up and fire me," she says.

In court Steve Usdin delivered a proclamation from Pettie. Our interests and the state's interests are the same, he said, so we don't need counsel.

"Some people practice law 20 or 30 years and never get fired on television," Walborsky jokes.

Pettie's strategy of nonresistance split the mothers. Knauth and Livingston gave Walborsky the boot, as instructed, while Arico, Evans, and Said retained her.

Arico describes the behind-the-scenes drama of that morning.

Livingston had called Pettie. "She begged him to tell her what to do," says Arico. "He said, 'Fire your attorney.' If you called him and begged him and he told you to do it, you can't say no. She was in agony. She really loves her son and she knew what would happen the way I knew what would happen if I fired my attorney—it wouldn't be in the best interest of the children."

Arico understood Pettie's logic. If you're in a confrontational situation, in some ways, you're creating it. Do what Gandhi and Ammerman and Holwell and others have done when attacked: Don't fight.

On another level there were the teachings of Lao Tzu. Planning. Strategy. Tactics. Loyalty. "Those ideas are really the crux of the group," says Arico, "and they are what keep the group functioning at the high level that it does." Pettie wanted them to go before the judge and tell him in unison that he could end all this right now, he could be the game caller. "Think if you were a judge, and there were five women in your courtroom, and in all of your experiences with them you knew that they really loved their kids and were trying to do the right things," says Arico. "That's the position Pettie wanted the judge put in."

Arico couldn't accept Pettie's advice. "The group told me to choose between Pettie and my kids. I chose my kids."

The hearing lasted until Wednesday. Walborsky hammered on the constitutional issues and appealed to the judge's experience. "This is a judge who has seen thousands of juvenile cases," Walborsky says. "I told him if the walls could talk they would cry. This wasn't the real thing. Essentially that's what he said in the end. He praised the efforts to raise the kids correctly. He was only concerned about their educations."

John Paul, B.B., and Honeybee, the three youngest children, were returned to their mothers—Arico, Said, and Evans. The judge didn't free the older three because he wanted their mothers to demonstrate that they would adequately educate them.

Arico agreed to cross every t and dot every i, and after two months of state supervision, she was given full custody of Mary. Livingston and Knauth's children were put in foster homes, but the state finally relinquished custody to the mothers that August.

Hours after the March 18 juvenile case ended, the Finders announced to the press that they had disbanded. It wasn't true, of course. But it did signal the end of Arico, Said, and Evans' membership in the group.

Arico cites many personal reasons for leaving the group that have little to do with the Florida incident. A few years before, she says, "I saw the writing on the wall, but I didn't read it."

She spoke with attorneys about suing the authorities and decided there were too many obstacles. "I would have had to put my children into therapy immediately to prove that they had been traumatized. As far as I'm concerned, whatever trauma there was, they've basically gotten over it now." Another hurdle would be proving wrongful intent. "Everything they did was within the limits of the law," she says.

Arico's final analysis of what went wrong: "You just can't have a highly disciplined lifestyle and have kids. You just can't. It just doesn't work."

Make no mistake, though. She loved being a Finder. "It's a very magnetic situation," she says. "But the mystery's gone now, the whole mystique that nobody knew what we really did." CP

This investigator asked [redacted] if the Police had ever been to the house in D.C. She relayed a confusing story of [redacted] having a fight. She said that [redacted] had kicked [redacted] and the Police came. [redacted] said that she was in a big house for children, then they came and got her out. He was also very curious of various office implements, such as a stapler, and typewriter.

This investigator then asked about some of the games that they play. [redacted] described one game as taking off the man's clothes, and putting them on, then going through the pockets for money. When this investigator asked about the men, and if all their clothes were off, both [redacted] and [redacted] said No. They then stated that they only removed the men's jackets.

Another game was described as taking a shirt that had holes in it, and running away with it, then tearing it up.

Both [redacted] and [redacted] advised that the women had come downstairs at Christmastime with no clothes on. Both children felt that this was very funny, and went along with the concept of it being a game.

[redacted] also reiterated what [redacted] had conveyed to this investigator about not being allowed to live in the house. He stated that the men were told to put the kids outside, and that they would like to make the men stay outside.

The other children were too small (inarticulate) to interview. This investigator did observe certain behavior that was consistent with indications that these children were not use to being in a house, or using indoor plumbing. Both [redacted] and [redacted] wet (urinated) in their pants. [redacted] wanted to go outside to go the bathroom.

When the van was checked for clothing for the children, several boxes of fruit and vegetables were found. The children were extremely hungry, and were given bananas, and carrots to eat. [redacted] ate approximately 8 bananas and a carrot. The other children were similarly hungry.

of the FBI. We discussed the current case, and what further information was needed by all agencies.

It was decided by consensus that the children would remain at their respective foster card homes. Any reunion between the children would take place at a later date.

HRS was given the information the possible parents of the children. It was also made clear that HRS would be present for the interviews until a Guardian Ad Litum was appointed.

At the meeting, Detective [redacted] advised that no evidence of a satanic cult was found at either residence in Washington, D.C. He was concerned about information he received from three separate sources concerning the basement of the house on [redacted]. This investigator and Detective [redacted] made arrangements to interview [redacted] at the Tree House that evening. Agent [redacted] would be present with Detective [redacted] during the interview of [redacted]. This interview will take place on February 9, 1987.

Detective [redacted] then started naming some adult names. He was making up fictitious names to see if [redacted] was creditable. She stated that she did not know any of the people he had mentioned, until he mentioned [redacted]. We had learned earlier that [redacted] had mentioned [redacted] in connection with the basement. From this conversation, we started talking about the basement again. [redacted] described the basement as four separate rooms; one being a laundry room, one a food room, and one a tool room. INVESTIGATOR'S SUBJECTIVE NOTES:

THIS CASE BEGAN ON FEB. 4, 1987 WHEN A CITIZEN OBSERVED A GROUP OF UNKEMPT CHILDREN AND TWO MEN IN MYERS PARK. SHE CALLED TALL. POLICE WHO ARRIVED AND OBSERVED SIX DIRTY CHILDREN. IN AN ATTEMPT TO QUESTION THE MEN REGARDING THE IDENTITY OF THE CHILDREN AND THEIR CONDITION THE MEN BEHAVED STRANGELY REGARDING THEIR STATEMENTS AND ACTIONS. BASED UPON THE CONDITION OF THE CHILDREN AND THE INABILITY OF THE MEN TO IDENTIFY THE CHILDREN AND THEMSELVES THE POLICE OFFICERS ARRESTED THE TWO MEN AND TOOK THE SIX CHILDREN INTO CUSTODY PENDING FURTHER INVESTIGATION.

MY INVOLVEMENT HAS BEEN AS AN ASSISTING INVESTIGATOR FROM THE BEGINNING. I OBSERVED THE CHILDREN THE NIGHT THEY WERE TAKEN INTO CUSTODY AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS. I SAW THE GENERALLY DIRTY STATE OF THEIR CLOTHES AND BODIES. THEY APPEARED TIRED AND CRANKY.

AS AN ASSISTING INVESTIGATOR I WORKED FULL TIME ON THIS CASE TO ASCERTAIN THE IDENTITY OF THE CHILDREN AND THE MEN. ON WEDNESDAY, FEB. 11 I WAS MADE LEAD INVESTIGATOR OF THE CASE.

DURING MY INVESTIGATION I WAS CONCERNED WITH THE WELFARE OF THE CHILDREN AND THE TWO MEN BEING HELD. I HAVE, 1.) ATTEMPTED TO LEARN THE IDENTITY OF THE CHILDREN, 2.) IF THEY WERE, IN FACT, ABUSED OR NEGLECTED AT THE TIME OF THE ARREST BY THE SUSPECTS, AND 3.) IF THE LIFESTYLE OF THE GROUP ABUSES OR NEGLECTS THE CHILDREN IN ANYWAY.

THE CHILDREN, MOTHERS AND THE TWO SUSPECTS ARE PART OF A GROUP THAT LIVE AN ALTERNATE LIFE STYLE. NO INFORMATION CAME TO ME INDICATING THAT THEIR LIFESTYLE ABUSES OR NEGLECTS THEIR CHILDREN. AT THE TIME OF THE ARREST THE ARRESTING OFFICERS CERTAINLY HAD PROBABLE CAUSE FOR ARREST. IT WAS REASONABLE TO EXPECT A FURTHER INVESTIGATION TO FOLLOW UP ON THE STRANGE CIRCUMSTANCES.

THE IDENTITIES OF THE CHILDREN STRONGLY APPEARS TO BE ACCURATE THAT THE TRUE MOTHERS HAVE COME FORWARD. THEY HAVE GIVEN PERSONAL INFORMATION THAT SUGGESTS THE CHILDREN ARE THEIRS. THE MOTHERS HAVE CO-OPERATED FULLY WITH THIS INVESTIGATOR. AT THIS TIME THE INFORMATION THEY GAVE ABOUT THEIR CHILDREN AND THEMSELVES IS BEING VERIFIED THROUGH THE F.B.I. WHICH HAS ASSISTED THROUGHOUT THE CASE.

AS TO WHETHER THE CHILDREN HAD ACTUALLY BEEN ABUSED OR NEGLECTED AT THE TIME OF ARREST SEEMS TO HINGE ON WHETHER THE CHILDREN BEING DIRTY, POSSIBLY HUNGRY, AND LIVING UNDER CAMPING LIKE CONDITIONS (PER THEIR SITUATION) CONSTITUTES ABUSE OR NEGLECT. PROBABLY THE TWO MEN-CARETAKERS COULD HAVE PROVIDED A BETTER ATMOSPHERE FOR THE CHILDREN AND BEEN MORE OPEN DURING INTERVIEWING BY POLICE AT THE SCENE.

REGARDING THE OVERALL LIFESTYLE OF THE GROUP IT IS DIFFICULT TO COMPILE COMPLETE INFORMATION. THE GROUP APPEARS TO BE "ONE FAMILY" WITH ALL MEMBERS HAVING ROLES WHICH INCLUDE WORKING, MAKING DECISIONS, AND HAVING OTHER RESPONSIBILITIES. NARRATIVE SUMMARY

I made a neighborhood check of the area around Myers Park on 13 FEB 87 and talked with several people. I talked with [redacted] of the Easter Seal center and she told me that none of her people had seen anything during the time prior to the incident at the park. She said that they did see the police when the arrests were made.

I talked with [redacted] at Parks and Recreation Dept. and she told me that she would ask her workers and playground supervisor's if they had seen anything and would get back to me. I left her a business card to call me if anything came up. I talked to the people in some of the houses along Myers Park Dr. that faced the playground area where the incident occurred. The only person that said she saw anything was [redacted] She is the babysitter there and the phone there is [redacted] Her home address is [redacted]

[redacted] said that she saw the blue van in the park two or three times a week since Decemeber. I asked her if it was the same van and the same children that were involved in the incident and she said that it was. She said that she did not notice any unusual treatment of the kids by the two adult males that were with them.

No one else in the immediate area saw anything.

A copy of [Redacted] correspondence has been forwarded to our Atlanta Office for review. The Criminal Investigative Division (CID) has thoroughly reviewed and discussed [Redacted] correspondence with the FBI, Macon, Georgia, Resident Agency (RA). The Macon RA is well aware of [Redacted] [Redacted] From the review of available material to date, there appears to have been medical evidence to indicate that one or more children were molested; however, the joint investigation in this matter by the Georgia Bureau of Investigation (GBI) and the Macon Police Department (MPD) did not determine who was responsible. Although the information reviewed to date does not appear to indicate a Federal violation, our Atlanta Office has been instructed to further review reports concerning the joint GBI/MPD investigation to determine if an FBI investigation is warranted.

The USCS informed the MPD that they were unsure if the six children had been kidnapped from their parents, and that they had attempted unsuccessfully to contact representatives of the Finders at 3918-3920 W. Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. They feared that other children were being abused at that address.

DRAFT

Based on information received from an MPD source and from the authorities in Florida, the MPD contacted AUSA [redacted] who advised that search warrants for the known Washington, D.C. addresses were appropriate under Title 18, U.S. Code, Section 1201 (Kidnapping). Subsequently, a representative of the MPD prepared an affidavit and search warrants were obtained from Magistrate Dwyer in the U.S. District Court for the premises at 3918-3920 W. Street, N.W., and 1307 4th Street, N.E., Washington, D.C.

SEARCH WARRANTS

♦ On 2/5-6/87, search warrants were executed for the premises at 3918-20 W. Street, N.W., and 1307 4th Street, N.E., Washington, D.C. by members of the MPD Intelligence Division. During the execution of the search warrants, no children were found. Large amounts of biographical information concerning the Finders was obtained along with computers, software and photographs. All of this information was subsequently turned over to the Florida authorities for evaluation.

♦ The MPD case file does not contain a copy of the search warrants nor a listing of specific items seized during the execution of search warrants on 2/5/87 and 2/6/87 at the Finders Group properties at 1307 4th Street, NE, and 3918/3920 W. Street, NW, Washington, D.C. Although a report dated 2/26/87 indicates that copies of documents seized during the execution of search warrants were provided to authorities in Florida, and that evidence held in the custody of the mobile crime lab would be released to representatives of the Finders, no documentation was found in the file which reflected the present status of any items seized during these searches.

MPD INVESTIGATION

♦ The MPD interviewed family members of the six children recovered in Tallahassee, Florida, as well as twenty-one former members of the Finders group. Representatives of the MPD travelled to Tallahassee, Florida to conduct interviews and to obtain information from the Tallahassee Police Department.

An MPD "overview report" dated 4/13/87 reported that the former members of the Finders group indicated that the Finders "organization began as an alternative life style in the 1960's and many of them became disenchanted with the quasi-military order under the direct supervision [redacted] [redacted] Many of the former members stated that they feared retribution from the Finders organization..."

b7C

The overview report also noted that the family members of the six children had been interviewed and they had stated that "... [redacted] had brainwashed their children, and prevented any contact with their children or grandchildren. Members of the Finders, according to family members would stop any contact by sending letters describing explicit sexual acts involving current members, including photographs and drawings..."

The information obtained from the children and the authorities in Tallahassee, Florida reflected that the children had not verbalized any complaints of sexual abuse.

During the interviews conducted by the MPD in this matter, no documented evidence was developed concerning sexual abuse of children by members of the Finders group.

♦ During an interview on 2/20/87, [redacted] a former member of the Finders Group, stated that "... [redacted]

◆ On 2/17/87, [Redacted] of the Finders, stated that the Finders have been known to send harassing letters and that [Redacted] had stated that this is an example of [Redacted]. He stated that although the Finders behavior was often bizarre, he did not recall ever seeing any children mistreated by the Finders.

FINAL DISPOSITION

◆ During the course of this investigation, the District of Columbia Child Protection Office was advised of this matter by the MPD. Copies of all documents seized during the execution of search warrants relative to child neglect/abuse or suspected neglect/abuse were provided for review by the Child Protection Office. During meetings between the Child Protection Office and representatives of the MPD, it was determined that the children involved in this matter were not under the jurisdiction of the District of Columbia.

The State of Florida dropped all charges in this matter in late March 1987 due to lack of evidence.

REFERENCES TO THE CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

◆ The MPD file contains three references to the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) located in reports dated 9/15/86, 2/19/87 and 4/13/87. There was no documentation in the file of any direction or interference of the MPD's Finders investigation by the CIA.

This report stated that "It is the writers belief that the Finders organization is and has been utilized by the CIA as a disinformation service spreading nonessential, non-critical information to various organizations throughout the United States and overseas. U.S. CUSTOMS SERVICE DOCUMENTS

♦ The MPD file contained three documents which appear to be reports prepared by an unidentified U.S. Customs Service (USCS) Special Agent (SA). These documents include a memo dated 2/7/87, a memo dated 4/13/87, and an undated document captioned "Finders/Chronology." The names of the USCS SA and the MPD Detective are not contained in these documents as they were deleted prior to review by the FBI.

♦ The memo dated 2/7/87 and captioned "Customs cooperation/interest in Tallahassee/Washington MPD child abuse investigation is addressed to the Resident Agent in Charge and is from an unidentified USCS SA. The memo indicates that the USCS duty Agent received a call on 2/5/87 from USCS, Tallahassee, Florida, who had been contacted by the Tallahassee Police Department (TPD) concerning a child abuse investigation. The TPD had contacted USCS to obtain assistance in identifying six children and two adults taken into custody by the TPD. The USCS Agent conducted computer checks on the Customs Child Pornography data base with negative results. Subsequently, the USCS SA was contacted by an MPD Detective who advised that he was interested in the information concerning the TPD investigation and that he would be conducting "search warrants in the area later in the day..." The Detective advised the USCS SA that the USCS was invited to participate due to the continuing possibility of violations of law enforced by the Customs Service.

The USCS SA accompanied the MPD on the execution of search warrants at 3918/20 W. Street, Washington, D.C. at which time he was able to observe and access the entire building. No children were located during the search. The memo notes that during the execution of the search warrants by the MPD, the USCS SA reports having observed large quantities of children's clothing and toys, several computers, and numerous documents. "...Cursory examination of the documents revealed detailed instructions for obtaining children for unspecified purposes. The instructions included the impregnation of female members of the community known as Finders, purchasing children, trading, and kidnapping..."

The memo notes that on 2/6/87, the USCS SA had met an MPD Detective at the warehouse on 4th Street, NE. He was granted unlimited access to the premises and he was able to observe numerous documents which described explicit sexual conduct between the members of the community known as Finders. The memo reports that the USCS SA saw a large collection of photographs of unidentified persons, some of which were nude, and believed to be members of the Finders.

[Redacted]

"...Further examination of the premises disclosed numerous files relating to activities of the organization in different parts of the world..." The memo concluded by noting that it would take three to five days for all the information to be sorted, reviewed and logged by the MPD, and that the USCS SA would maintain contact with the MPD Detective.

♦ The MPD file contained a memo dated 4/13/87, captioned "Finders." The memo, marked "Confidential," was addressed to the Resident Agent in Charge, Washington, D.C. and was from an unidentified USCS SA. This memo reports that on 3/31/87, the USCS SA had contacted an MPD Detective and arranged a meeting to review the documents seized pursuant to two search warrants executed in "January 1987." On 4/2/87, the USCS SA went to meet the MPD Detective who was not available, and the USCS SA spoke to "...a third party who was willing to discuss the case with me on a strictly 'off the record' basis..." The memo reports that the USCS SA "...was advised that all the passport data had been turned over to the State Department for their investigation. The State Department in turn advised MDP that all travel and use of the passports by the holders of the passports was within the law and no action would be taken. This included travel to Moscow, North Korea, and North Vietnam from the late 1950's to mid 1970's. The individual further advised me of circumstances which indicated that the investigation into the activity of the FINDERS had become a CIA internal matter. The MPD report has been classified Secret and was not available for review. I was advised that the FBI had withdrawn from the investigation several weeks prior and that the FBI Foreign Counter Intelligence Division had directed MPD not to advise the FBI Washington Field Office of anything that had transpired. No further information will be available. No further action will be taken."

♦ The MPD file contained an undated document captioned "Finders/Chronology (see previous material for dates)." This document listed an undated chronology of events, and the first entry is as follows: "Contact of U.S. Customs by Tallahassee PD regarding discovery of unidentified children and adult male "guardians in city park." Subsequent entries report the MPD obtaining search warrants, the execution of those search warrants by the MPD and two USCS SAs, and the seizure of numerous documents to include passports, telexes, computer/electronic media, and correspondence. The chronology included the following entries:

"Based on observed documents, Customs agent unsuccessfully attempts to gain access to evidence for detailed analysis for use in investigating possible export, neutrality act, mann act, and child pornography violations."

"U. S. Passport showing travel by subject to North Korea, North Vietnam, and Soviet Union from 1956(?) through 1975(?) was turned over to State Department Security for investigation, but investigators were advised that travel was 'legitimate' and to terminate further investigation."

"As investigation proceeded, CIA made one contact and CIA defers all further contacts to FCIA (Foreign Counter Intelligence Agency). FCIA is distinct and autonomous organization within FBI."

(S)

"FCIA contacts MPD intelligence and advised that all reports regarding Finders are to be classified at the Secret level. FCIA also advised that no information was to be turned over to the FBI WFO for investigation, and that the WFO would not be advised of the CIA or FCIA involvement/contact."

"Children discovered in Tallahassee were eventually turned over to individuals claiming to be parents or guardians. No further MPD, FBI or Customs involvement."

"As far as is known, no details of CIA or FCIA involvement ever became public."

♦ The MPD file did not contain documentation corroborating the chronology of events listed in the document captioned "Finders/Chronology (see previous material for dates)."

[redacted] the two subjects with the children, could not initially provide sufficient information as to their legal custody of the children and were uncooperative regarding their identity and the children's identity. As a result of information developed during these arrests, the TPD contacted the Washington Metropolitan Police Department (MPD), Washington, D.C., and provided information concerning [redacted] [redacted] and their association with a group known as "Finders," based in Washington, D.C. On 2/5/87 and 2/6/87, the MPD executed search warrants, prepared by the United States Attorney's Office, District of Columbia, Washington, D.C., on two properties owned by the "Finders" in Washington, D.C. FBI Special Agent (SA) [redacted] WMFO case Agent, and USCS SA [redacted] participated in these searches.

◆ Investigation conducted by the MPD and WMFO, lead to the identification and interview of the mothers of the six children, two of the fathers, and several other key members of the "Finders" group. On 2/18/87, WMFO presented the results of their investigation to Assistant United States Attorney [redacted] [redacted] United States Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia, Washington, D.C., who declined prosecution for violation of Title 18, U.S. Code, Section 1201 (kidnaping) and 2251 (sexual exploitation of children).

◆ On 11/9/93 the MPD provided a copy of the MPD investigative case file concerning the FINDERS. The case file did not contain a listing of items which had been seized during the MPD execution of search warrants on 2/5-6/87 on the two FINDERS properties, 1307 4th Street, NE, and 3918/3920 W Street,

NW, Washington, D.D. In addition, there was no indication of the present status of any items seized at these searches, nor a listing of personnel who had been present during the execution of these search warrants. The MPD Detective that had been assigned to this case was Detective [redacted]

♦ WMFO SA [redacted] was interviewed on 11/8/93, and MPD Detective [redacted] was interviewed on 11/10/93, concerning their knowledge of the "FINDERS investigation, to include any information they might possess concerning child abuse/exploitation by the FINDERS as well as any knowledge concerning the alleged involvement by [redacted]

♦ SA [redacted] was present during the execution of the MPD search warrant at the warehouse owned by the FINDERS. She observed computer equipment, and records, but she observed no evidence of child sexual exploitation, child abuse, or child pornography. Subsequent to the execution of the search warrants, SA [redacted] had obtained a copy of a memoranda, prepared by USCS

◆ On 11/12/93, WMFO interviewed USCS SA [redacted] who provided information concerning the USCS 1993 response to [redacted] on USCS's child exploitation investigations. He had interviewed USCS SA [redacted] on 9/3/93 and 9/16/93 during which [redacted] advised that he had reviewed USCS files and interviewed USCS Agents and Supervisors concerning the FINDERS investigation. [redacted] related that the Customs file on the FINDERS case in 1987 consisted of only one report, that of SA [redacted] indicated that his review of USCS files revealed no evidence of any FINDERS involvement with child abuse, child sexual exploitation, or child pornography. He indicated that he could find no evidence of any Customs violation of any kind located within the file.

[redacted] related that his review of USCS files located no references to [redacted] or any other intelligence organization have been involved for making inquiries concerning the FINDERS investigation. He advised that his review of the MPD files on the FINDERS did reveal two references to [redacted] one in a report written by a Sergeant Stitcher, and the other in a report written by Detective [redacted]

♦ On 11/19/93, WMFO obtained a copy of the Washington Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) investigative file concerning FINDERS.

The police in Tallahassee responded to the location of the van in the evening hours of February 4,1987 and located the children and arrested two male subjects later identified as [redacted]

Lastly, the source in this investigation told your affiant that information concerning this "cult" is kept in computers stored at the addresses listed in this affidavit. The Tallahassee police advised that they recovered a computer in the van that was seized in Florida along with disk's. The Florida authorities are attempting to obtain a search warrant for the information on the disk's and in the computer. The two defendants are currently being held on $50,000.00 cash bond under the direction of Florida States attorney Fordham.

Based on the information contained in this affidavit your affiant requests the issuance of two search warrants for the entire premises known as 3918-20 W Street N.W. Washington, D.C. and 1307 4th Street N.E. Washington D.C. so that we may go forth and seize all evidence of kidnaping which is a violation of the United States Code Title 18 section 1201, including but not limited to records, files, computer software and hardware and any instrumentalities of a criminal offense.

On December 15, 1986, Detective [Redacted] responded to the area of Glover Park in the rear of the 3900 Block of W Street, N.W. Det. [Redacted] observed a clearing approximately seventy yards behind the house and several stumps surrounding the open area. Several round stones had been gathered near the circle, this practice is sometimes used in Satanic rituals, and evidence that several persons had gathered in the clearing recently. The rear of the residence is covered from the alley by heavy bamboo growth, save a small entrance to the rear yard. In the rear yard was a small very ornate gravestone propped up against the support pillar for the porch.

CIA tied to cult accused of abuse

Justice probes links to Finders

By Paul M. Rodriguez
THE WASHINGTON TIMES

A Justice Department special task force is investigating whether the CIA used a cult called the Finders as a front organization to provide computer training to intelligence agents in the 1980s.

The task force is also trying to determine whether the CIA — in an effort to hide any links with the Finders — impeded local law enforcement probes of the Washington-area communal group for child abuse in 1987.

"The central question being asked is: Did the CIA have an association with this group and did it try to shut down their [state and local officials'] investigations of child abuse for purposes of protecting one or more of its operations?" said a senior federal law enforcement official familiar with the probe.

A senior CIA official yesterday denied that the agency was involved with the Finders or tried to impede police probes of the cult.

"Most days we expect our share of unusual questions, but this one is clear off the wall," a CIA spokesman told The Washington Times.

"Any claim that we obstructed justice in this case is nuts," the spokesman said.

"In fact," he said, reading from a prepared statement, "we cooperated with law enforcement authorities when questions arose in 1987."

A Washington computer-training company that employed Finders members said it trained CIA personnel, but the firm's president denied it was owned by the Finders. He said he was unaware of any use of the training for covert activities.

Justice Department officials have declined to discuss what, if anything, their probe has uncovered. "We are still in the review process," a senior official said.

The Finders, a group that has dwindled from about 40 members to fewer than a dozen, made front-page news in February 1987 when two of its members were arrested in Tallahassee, Fla., on charges of child abuse.

The case received close media scrutiny partly because of accusations that the group was involved in satanic rituals, but the charges were dismissed by a Florida judge.

The Justice Department formed the task force in mid-November after several members of Congress received copies of previously confidential U.S. Customs Service records suggesting a cover-up in the Finders case to protect the CIA.

The Times has obtained these customs records and documents from both federal and local law enforcement agencies and the intelligence community that chronicle the investigation of the Finders.

One of the key documents that have prompted the Justice Department and members of Congress to question what happened six years ago is a report dated April 13, 1987, that was written by a junior Customs Service agent who was on the original team that raided Finders property in Washington and Virginia.

"The investigation into the activity of the Finders had become a CIA internal matter. . . . [The Metropolitan Police Department] report has been classified Secret and not available for review," the agent wrote in his memo to superiors.

"I was advised that the FBI had withdrawn from the investigation several weeks prior and that the FBI Foreign Counter Intelligence Division had directed MPD not to advise the FBI Washington Field Office of anything that had transpired," the memo says.

"No further information will be available. No further action will be taken."

Other Customs Service documents and records from the FBI and Metropolitan Police provide indications that the CIA had links to the Finders or at least to some of the group's members.

A Metropolitan Police document dated Feb. 19, 1987, quotes a CIA agent as confirming that his agency was sending its personnel to "a Finders Corp., Future Enterprises, for training in computer operations."

And a later Customs Service report says that the CIA "admitted to owning the Finders organization as a front for a domestic computer training operation but that it had 'gone bad.'"

A senior Customs Service official confirmed the content of the memos and said the agency "only had a small role in the case."

A CIA official who asked not to be named confirmed that the agency had sent personnel for computer training to a company called Future Enterprises Inc.

But he cautioned, "I'm not sure if that was a Finders organization" as suggested by the Metropolitan Police and Customs Service reports.

Joseph Marinich, the president of Future Enterprises Inc., said he once had a contract to train CIA employees in computers.

But he denied that he or his firm had any involvement with the Finders or acted as a front company for the cult on behalf of the CIA. "I'm shocked and appalled that our company's name exists in any" law enforcement files.

Mr. Marinich said that when the news reports on the Finders broke in February 1987, he discovered that his tax accountant, R. Gardner Terrell, was a member of the group.

"It was a total surprise to us," and Mr. Terrell's employment was ended, Mr. Marinich said.

Mr. Terrell, who left the Finders a few years ago and no longer lives in the Washington area, could not be reached. But a friend confirmed that he worked for Future Enterprises while a member of the Finders.

Current and former members of the group said Mr. Terrell's work for Future Enterprises was separate from the group's other activities.

Current members of the Finders said they did not have any interest in Future Enterprises and denied working for the CIA or any other intelligence organization.

"I guess you could say we're odd," said Steve Usdin, a free-lance writer associated with the Finders. "But we're not criminal."

U.S. NEWS

Through a glass, very darkly

Cops, spies and a very odd investigation

The case is almost seven years old now, but matters surrounding a mysterious group known as the Finders keep growing curiouser and curiouser.

In early February 1987, an anonymous tipster in Tallahassee, Fla., made a phone call to police. Two "well-dressed men" seemed to be "supervising" six disheveled and hungry children in a local park, the caller said. The cops went after the case like bloodhounds—at least at first. The two men were identified as members of the Finders. They were charged with child abuse in Florida. In Washington, D.C., police and U.S. Customs Service agents raided a duplex apartment building and a warehouse connected to the group. Among the evidence seized: detailed instructions on obtaining children for unknown purposes and several photographs of nude children. According to a Customs Service memorandum obtained by U.S. News, one photo appeared "to accent the child's genitals."

The more the police learned about the Finders, the more bizarre they seemed: There were suggestions of child abuse, Satanism, dealing in pornography and ritualistic animal slaughter.

None of the allegations was ever proved, however. The child abuse charges against the two men in Tallahassee were dropped; all six of the children were eventually returned to their mothers, though in the case of two, conditions were attached by a court. In Washington, D.C., police began backing away from the Finders investigation. The group's practices, the police said, were eccentric—not illegal.

Questions. Today, things appear to have changed yet again. The Justice Department has begun a new investigation into the Finders and into the group's activities. It is also reviewing the 1987 investigation into the group to determine whether that probe was closed improperly. Justice officials will not elaborate, except to say the investigation is "ongoing" and that it involves "unresolved matters" in relation to the Finders.

One of the unresolved questions involves allegations that the Finders are somehow linked to the Central Intelligence Agency. Customs Service documents reveal that in 1987, when Customs agents sought to examine the evidence gathered by Washington, D.C., police, they were told that the Finders investigation "had become a CIA internal matter." The police report on the case had been classified secret. Even now, Tallahassee police complain about the handling of the Finders investigation by D.C. police. "They dropped this case," one Tallahassee investigator says, "like a hot rock." D.C. police will not comment on the matter. As for the CIA, ranking officials describe allegations about links between the intelligence agency and the Finders as "hogwash"—perhaps the result of a simple mix-up with D.C. police. The only connection, according to the CIA: A firm that provided computer training to CIA officers also employed several members of the Finders.

The many unanswered questions about the Finders case now have Democratic Rep. Charlie Rose of North Carolina, chairman of the House Administration Committee, and Florida's Rep. Tom Lewis, a Republican, more than a little exercised. "Could our own government have something to do with this Finders organization and turned their backs on these children? That's what all the evidence points to," says Lewis. "And there's a lot of evidence. I can tell you this: We've got a lot of people scrambling, and that wouldn't be happening if there was nothing here."

Perhaps. But the Finders say there is nothing there—at least nothing illegal. The Finders have never been involved in child abuse, pornography, Satanism, animal slaughter or anything of the kind, says the group's leader, Marion David Pettie. Pettie, too, says the group has never been connected to the CIA.

In an interview with U.S. News, Pettie described the Finders as a communal, holistic-living and learning arrangement. The group numbers some 20 members, Pettie says; they do freelance journalism, research and "competitor intelligence" for a variety of mostly foreign clients. The Finders work for no foreign governments, Pettie says. Their duplex, in a residential Northwest Washington neighborhood, is decorated with global maps and bulletin boards. Residents of Culpeper, Va., 90 minutes from Washington, say the Finders have operated an office there, too, from time to time. That office contained computer terminals and clocks reflecting different time zones around the world.

CIA officials say they referred all matters concerning the Finders and the police investigation to the FBI's Foreign Counterintelligence Division. FBI officials will not comment. Law enforcement sources say some of the Finders are listed in the FBI's classified counterintelligence files.

None of this fazes Pettie. He says the CIA's interest in the Finders may stem from the fact that his late wife once worked for the agency and that his son worked for a CIA proprietary firm, Air America. Overall, says Pettie, "we're a zero security threat. When you don't do much of anything, and you don't explain, people start rumors about you." To judge from the latest case, some of the rumors can last an awfully long time. □

Re WMFO teletype to Bureau dated 11/8/93.

Supervisory Special Agent (SSA) [redacted] has been assigned to the Behavioral Science Services Unit (BSSU), FBI Academy, Quantico, Virginia, [redacted] and specializes in training, research and case consultation in the area of sexual victimization of children.

b6
b7c

The following are the best recollections of SSA [redacted] concerning his involvement in captioned matter:

From 2/9-13/87, the BSSU sponsored an Advanced Sexual Exploitation of Children Seminar held at the Xerox Training Center in Leesburg, Virginia, for approximately 50 state and federal investigators. SSA [redacted] Special Agent (SA) [redacted] U.S. Customs, Reston, Virginia, was one of several U.S. Customs Agents who attended.

SA [redacted] discussing the role of U.S. Customs in the investigation of sexual exploitation of children. Because one of the topics discussed during the seminar was allegations of ritual child abuse, SA [redacted] and other law enforcement attendees, his recent involvement with the execution of a search warrant on property in Washington, D.C., occupied by a group called the Finders. Shortly thereafter, SSA [redacted] was telephonically contacted on several occasions by FBI agents and supervisors from FBIHQ, WMFO and the Tallahassee Resident Agency seeking advice and guidance concerning the FBI's involvement in the investigation of the Finders. The primary guidance sought concerned the interview of the children identified in Tallahassee, Florida, as potential victims of members of the Finders. Eventually it was decided that because the children in question did not appear to have been kidnapped in violation of federal statutes, the interviews of the children would be conducted by local police from Washington, D.C. and Florida.

Sometime in the months after the investigation began in February 1987, during an unrelated conversation, SA [redacted] mentioned to SSA [redacted] that the investigative reports on the Finders case [redacted]

On another occasion in the same general time frame SA [redacted] WMFO, briefed SSA [redacted] at Quantico, Virginia, concerning the FBI investigation of the Finders. At no time during this discussion did SA [redacted] indicate that her investigation was hindered or disrupted in anyway by any alleged connection between the Finders [redacted] briefly discussed the fact that SA [redacted] seemed to be the only investigator who observed certain items of alleged evidence discussed in his memo.

During the years following the to time February 1987, investigation, SSA [redacted] has from time heard rumors from the media and others that there was some connection between the Finders and [redacted] SSA [redacted] has no first hand knowledge of such a connection. More importantly, SSA [redacted] is aware of no evidence to indicate that allegations of sexual exploitation of children in the Finders case were not thoroughly and properly investigated in spite of alleged connections to [redacted]

b6
b7C
b7E

In summary because of his expertise concerning sexual victimization of children, SSA [redacted] briefly consulted with investigators involved in the Finders case back in 1987. He himself, however, conducted no investigation in captioned case.

A search of FBIHQ indices was conducted for [redacted]
[redacted] File reviews were conducted on indices references identified by the indices search as follows:

1. 7-20191-this is a main file concerning the investigation in 1987 wherein [redacted] were arrested by the Tallahassee Police Department, Tallahassee, Florida and charged with misdemeanor child abuse. A review of this file is as follows:

On 2/4/87, [redacted]
[redacted] were arrested by Tallahassee Police Department (TPD) on misdemeanor child abuse charges. The two subjects were arrested after a complaint was made that six children were playing in a park seemed to be unkept and neglected. The two subjects with the children could not initially provide sufficient information as to their legal custody of the children and were uncooperative regarding their identity or the children identity.

After the subjects were arrested TPD obtained information from the children that they were from the Washington, D. C. area. TPD and FBI Jacksonville contacted the Youth Services Division in Washington, D. C. in an effort to further identify the children. The FBI got involved in the investigation at this time due to the possibility that the children had been kidnaped. The vehicle registration records for a van the men had in their possession when arrested reflected that it was registered to a [redacted]

A joint investigation by the Washington Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) and the Federal Bureau of Investigation lead to the identification and interview of the mothers of the six children in question, two of the fathers, and several other key members of the "finders" group. All persons interviewed claimed their group consisted of an alternate communal type life style made up of intellectuals who have chosen to live the way they do. The mothers were all aware that the children had been taken to Florida on a trip, they were familiar with and thoroughly trusted the men in whose care the children had been placed, and all insisted the children were well cared for.

On 2/18/87, The United States Attorneys Office, WDC, declined prosecution in this matter for the violation of USC, Title 18, Sections 1201 and 1251.

Subjects [redacted] were released from the custody of the TPD on 3/17/87, and all charges against them were dropped.

THE FINDERS

The following excerpts include information contained in an undated memorandum from Acting Chief George C. Burgasser to Acting Assistant Attorney General John C. Keeney, Criminal Division, Department of Justice, Washington, D.C. and information obtained from the records of the Washington Metropolitan Police Department (MPD), and the U.S. Customs Service (USCS). These excerpts provide the details of this investigation and are the basis of the Department of Justice's request that the FBI conduct a preliminary investigation to determine if more comprehensive investigation is warranted.

On February 4, 1987, the Tallahassee Police Department (TPD), Tallahassee, Florida, responded to a complaint that a well-dressed white male was seen in a park with several unkempt children. The TPD spoke with the adult male who told them that he was a Washington, D.C., school teacher who together with another adult male was in the process of taking the children to Mexico. The purpose of the trip was to set up a school for brilliant children in Mexico. The male refused to provide additional information about the children, and the second male refused to provide any information about himself. The Police arrested the two men after they determined that the children seemed neglected and the two men could not provide sufficient information as to their legal custody of the children. The two men were subsequently identified as [REDACTED]

b7c

The TPD contacted U.S. Customs (USC) and continued their investigation by attempting to ascertain whether a van in which the two men and children were travelling could provide any additional leads as to the identities of the men or children. On February 5, 1987, a U.S Customs Special Agent (USCSA) in Tallahassee, Florida, called USC Headquarters (USCHQ) asking if they could assist in contacting an appropriate local police agency to coordinate a child abuse investigation with the TPD. Additionally, several names, addresses, and a vehicle identification number were checked through the USC child pornography database, as there was some suspicion of the two males being involved in supplying children for the production of child pornography. The computer checks by USC were negative.

Subsequently, USCHQ, Washington, D.C., contacted Metropolitan Police Department (MPD), and determined that they were interested in the information, and that search warrants were being considered for two addresses in the District of Columbia. MPD invited the USC to observe the execution of the search warrants in the event that evidence of USC violations was recovered.

Search warrants were prepared by the United States Attorney's Office, District of Columbia, for both the warehouse and residence. A USCSA participated in the execution of the search warrant at the 3918/3920 W Street address, where he claims to have seen the following:

On March 31, 1987, the USCSA contacted representatives of the MPD to review the evidence seized during the February search warrants. A meeting was scheduled for the second or third of April. On April 2, 1987, when the USCSA arrived to meet with MPD, the MPD Detective was not available. A "third party" MPD Officer advised the USCSA that he was willing to talk to him "off the record." two individuals were identified as belonging to a group based in

A joint investigation by the Washington Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) and the Federal Bureau of Investigation lead to the identification and interview of the mothers of the six children in question, two of the fathers, and several other key members of the "finders" group. The mothers were all aware that the children had been taken to Florida on a trip, they were familiar with and thoroughly trusted the men in whose care the children had been placed, and all insisted the children were well cared for.
